Measures receives first reading

City pay hike bill closer to approval

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor

All city employees stand to receive a 15 per cent pay increase retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year, if Washington C.H. City Council passes an ordinance introduced at Wednesday night's meeting.

City Council has been studying a possible salary increase for city employees for many months. At Wednesday's meeting the pay raise ordinance was introduced and placed on first reading.

The ordinance must now go on at least two more readings before the pay increase becomes effective. Under Council's present meeting calendar approval should be reached by July 27.

However, regardless of when the ordinance is passed, city employees will receive raises on salaries paid since the first of this year.

Before the ordinance was placed on its first reading, Council members recessed into a closed executive session to iron out a few details.

After the private eight-minute session, Council reconvened and a motion was made to suspend the rules in an effort to pass the pay increase ordinance immediately. The motion failed by a 3-3 vote, but the ordinance was unanimously placed on first reading.

The new pay plan will eliminate the payment of a cost of living adjustment, which was apparently a major concern of the Washington C.H. Police Department.

Police officers had requested that the cost of living adjustment remain in the pay schedule and offered to accept a reduced base pay raise in an effort to keep the cost of living payments.

According to Council, police officers requested a 12 per cent salary increase as of Jan. 1 of this year, a 10 per cent base salary increase, and the inclusion of a cost of living adjustment. This request was made in April when Council surveyed city employees.

In June, police officers modified their requests in the hopes of keeping the cost of living adjustment. It called for a 15 per cent pay raise of the Dec. 31, 1976 salary.

The police, and all other city employees with the exception of administrators, did receive such an increase, but the cost of living adjustment was eliminated.

A letter submitted by police officers on June 2 stated that most of the police officers would accept a lesser amount across-the-board increase and a reduction in overtime pay providing the cost of living adjustment is not removed.

"The members are presently willing to sacrifice the premium one and one-half rate for overtime in order to persuade Council of our sincere desire to have the cost of living clause remain in effect," the letter said.

With the introduction of the pay raise ordinance which eliminates the cost of living adjustment for all city employees, it appears the police department request has been denied.

Washington C. H. firemen were also asked to submit raise increase proposals. According to Council, the firemen's basic request was a $2,000 per man increase. This request was also denied and firemen would be granted the same 15 per cent salary increase as other city employees, if the ordinance is passed.

Although city employees have been receiving a cost of living adjustment for several years, there have been no base salary increases since Jan. 1, 1974.

COUNCIL ALSO placed an ordinance which increases the pay of city administrators on first reading Wednesday night.

Included in the ordinance are the salary adjustments for the city manager, the wastewater treatment plant superintendent, the city auditor, the street superintendent, the city income tax administrator, the deputy city auditor, the Municipal Court clerk and the city treasurer.

If the ordinance is passed, the city manager, George Shapter, will receive a $25,500 annual salary. He is presently being paid $20,000 a year.

Most of the other administrators will receive raises of more than $2,000 if the ordinance is passed.

Coffee Break . .

CITY COUNCIL finally sold its car... The city had advertised for bids for the sale of a surplus, 1973 model automobile last month. Council received only one bid on the used, city car and felt the $200 offer was too low.

Council then voted to readvertise for bids and again only one bid was received. It was from the same person, George Malek of 528 Temple St., and this time Council accepted the bid. However, they lost $1. Malek had lowered his bid to $199.

A BUS full of American Field Service students, who have been staying in Wisconsin during the past school year, will be stopping in Fayette County Friday for a five-day visit.

The 41 students from many different foreign lands will be staying with various host families in Fayette County. The bus is expected to arrive sometime after 7 p.m. Friday at Miami Trace High School.

ELDERLY PERSONS in the Washington C. H. area should exercise caution when approached by door-to-door insurance salesmen.

The Help Anonymous office reported to Coffee Break today that a salesman, representing himself as an employee of the Social Security Administration, was conducting door-to-door sales last week. One elderly woman wrote him a check for $300.

YOUNG DRIVER KILLED — The driver of this car, Catherine L. Lehman, 18, of 1056 Clemens Road, was killed shortly before 3:30 p.m. Wednesday when the vehicle struck a utility pole on White Road near New Holland. The utility pole was broken and a transformer on top of the pole fell across the auto.

One-car mishap claims recent WSHS graduate

A recent graduate of Washington Senior High School was killed Wednesday afternoon when the car she was driving struck a utility pole on White Road, approximately one mile south of U.S. 22-E in Wayne Township.

Fayette County sheriff's deputies reported that Catherine Lynn Lehman, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Lehman, 1056 Clemens Road SE, near New Holland, was killed in the single-car accident.

Miss Lehman, a 1977 graduate of Washington Senior High School, was transported by the Fayette County Life Squad to Fayette County Memorial Hospital where she was pronounced dead upon arrival.

According to the sheriff's department report, Miss Lehman was traveling north on White Road about 3:20 p.m. when she drove left of center on a slight curve. The car traveled off the left side of the roadway for 165 feet striking a utility pole with a transformer.

Investigating officer, Robert McArthur, chief deputy with the Fayette County Sheriff's Department, reported that the utility pole was broken in two pieces and the top portion with the transformer fell across the top of the 1968 model Cadillac.

McArthur said the young driver was not speeding at the time of the mishap. He also said he didn't believe the rainy weather or the road conditions were factors in the accident.

Miss Lehman's car traveled another 195 feet in a ditch after impact with the utility pole and struck a farm fence.

CATHERINE L. LEHMAN

The vehicle then rolled up a grade in the field and back down another 65 feet before coming to a stop, the report stated.

The accident was reported to the Fayette County Sheriff's Department by Jacques Craven, 36, of 2214 White Road, near New Holland.

Miss Lehman became Fayette County's seventh traffic accident victim this year, the last fatal mishap occurring May 16 in Washington C.H. Born in Van Wert, Ohio on Oct. 30.

1958, Miss Lehman moved to Washington C.H. with her parents 16 years ago. She was employed as a medical assistant with Dr. Ralph Gebhart and Dr. Robert A. Heiny in the Medical Arts building.

Active in school activities before graduation, Miss Lehman was a member of the National Honor Society, the American Field Service chapter, the Y-Teens Club, the school's Pep Club, and the Celebration and Cyndicated Singers musical groups. She was a member of the Grace United Methodist Church and Job's Daughters.

Besides her parents, Lawrence and Phyllis Gribler Lehman, she is survived by a brother, John Lehman at home; her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Frances M. Lehman, of Washington D.C.; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gribler, of Van Wert, and her maternal great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Whitmore, of Rockford, Ohio, and Mrs. Viola Richards, of Decatur, Ind.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home, Washington C.H., with the Rev. Philip Brooks, associate pastor of the Grace United Methodist Church, officiating. Burial will be in New Holland Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home from 3 to 5 and 7 until 9 p.m. Friday. Friends are asked to contribute to the Cathy Lehman Memorial Scholarship Fund which has been established at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Washington C.H.

Council remodeling committee eyes plans

New city building set for renovation

The future home of the Washington C. H. City Building was vacated earlier than anticipated and is now available for renovation, according to City Manager George H. Shapter.

Shapter made the announcement at Wednesday night's City Council meeting. Council's remodeling committee is now planning to meet with Thomas A. Reed, an architect, to plan the sizes of rooms and location of offices.

The meeting was scheduled for this afternoon with Reed. Council passed a motion Wednesday authorizing the city manager to sign a contract with Reed, who is a member of the Harder, Reed, and Ruby Associates architectural firm of Worthington.

Contract agreements for the purchase of the building at 215 E. Market St. have been reached. The purchase price of the building, which formerly housed the Kirk Auto Parts store, is $50,000.

The purchase price is due upon transfer of the deed which will occur sometime before Sept. 1. Council is still studying possible avenues for paying for the building that is owned by Bud Brownell.

A number of other information and policy items were referred to Council at Wednesday's meeting. Several motions

Further study scheduled

Sewer bill penalty measure discussed

An ordinance increasing the penalty rates for delinquent sewer bill payments was thrown open for discussion at Wednesday night's Washington C. H. City Council meeting.

No vote was taken on the ordinance which would significantly increase penalty charges for city residents who neglect to pay their sewer bills. The ordinance was turned over to a three-member committee for further study.

In presenting the legislation, City Manager George H. Shapter said there were over $40,000 in delinquent city sewer payments at the end of April. He stated that the current penalty, which is 10 per cent of the unpaid bill, is too low.

"It (the penalty) has to be something severe or it won't work," Shapter said.

The ordinance suggested a percentage charge on delinquent bills which would increase to 100 per cent for bills over nine months overdue.

In discussing the proposed ordinance, Council members related their views on an increased penalty charge.

Council member Ralph L. Cook said he agreed that the present penalty is too low, but he said he thought the proposed penalty structure was too high. He added that he would be in favor of a penalty charge between the current one and the proposed one.

Council member John F. Morris said he thought a penalty on sewer bills should not be levied until it is at least 60 days overdue. He said that 30 days is too quick.

Council member Billie Wilson had a different type of concern over delinquent charges. He was worried about rental owners getting stuck with tenants' sewer bills.

He said that some tenants leave town without paying sewer bills and the bills are left to the landlord. In many instances, Wilson said, the landlord has no idea the bills are delinquent until they are many months overdue.

He felt a stiff penalty would be unfair to landlords in such instances.

The remaining Council members voiced no opposition to the sewer-billing penalty ordinance. However, it was suggested that the ordinance undergo further study before it is voted upon.

Cook proposed that Council find out what other cities levy sewer bill penalties.

Shapter said such information does not exist. Other cities also own the municipal water service company, and when sewer bills go unpaid the resident's water service is discontinued. Because Washington C. H. does not own or operate the local water service company, this measure could not be applied to Washington C. H., he said.

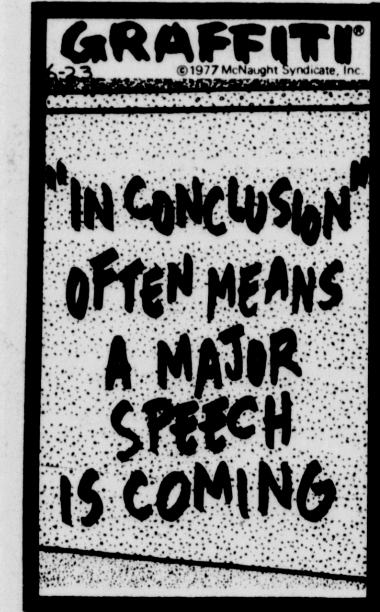

The committee appointed to study the proposed ordinance consists of Council members Morris and James Ward and city solicitor Gary D. Smith.

A SPECIAL Council meeting was set for Friday at 1 p.m. in the Washington C. H. city building in a hurried effort to approve an ordinance placed on its second reading Wednesday night.

The ordinance would amend the city zoning map and allow the construction of multi-housing units on land owned by Donald Hawk. The construction site is located on S. Elm Street near the John Street intersection.

Commissioner, architect outline site selection reasons

Officials respond to critics of proposed senior citizens center

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor

Criticism on the location of a proposed Fayette County senior citizens center was answered Wednesday afternoon at a public hearing in the Grace United Methodist Church.

Both Fayette County Commissioner Laurence A. (Bucky) Dumford and Columbus architect Doug Weatherby outlined reasons why the site on S. Elm Street was selected for the proposed center.

Dumford, who was instrumental in selecting the site for the proposed center, told the more than 40 persons at the hearing that he had heard criticism in the local newspapers and on the street about selecting the S. Elm Street location.

Criticism expressed in the Record-Herald came in the form of a "Letter to the Editor" in which a local resident questioned the site selection.

The letter's author stated that she failed "to see the advisability of using $30,000 of taxpayers' money to buy ground for a facility for senior citizens who may get a dubious uplift from a view of a cemetery and the aroma from a sewage disposal plant."

The proposed site is located across the street from the St.

Colman Catholic Cemetery and is near the Washington C. H. sewage disposal plant. Also, there has apparently been criticism of locating the center in a "run-down" neighborhood.

Dumford said the selection of the S. Elm Street site on a 3.6-acre tract of land was not "a haphazard guess."

He noted that the site-search committee for the senior citizens center had studied a number of sites in nicer neighborhoods. However, federal funding for a center on such a site would have been much more difficult to obtain, he said.

The U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) allocates the federal funds for such senior citizen centers. The request for nearly $400,000 in HUD funds has been submitted by the Fayette County Board of Commissioners.

If the fund request is granted, money will be available to reimburse the Fayette County Commission on Aging for the purchase of the land and to build the center.

DUMFORD SAID that by locating the center in a neighborhood that could use rejuvenation, the federal grant is more likely to be approved.

Weatherby, the consulting architect with the Weatherby and Goodman Inc. firm in Columbus, said that locating the center on S. Elm Street would "increase the number of points you can get through the HUD ranking system."

The federal agency apparently takes a number of "points" into consideration before granting such funds. Feasibility and need as well as possible community improvements are weighed by HUD officials before making a decision on grant requests.

The site committee felt that by locating the center at the S. Elm Street location chances of receiving the federal grant were greatly increased.

Weatherby added that Washington C. H. was selected as the site for the facility that will serve senior citizens in the entire county because of the city's centralized location. He noted that 55.9 per cent of the senior citizens (persons over 60 years of age) reside in the city.

There will be another public hearing on the proposed senior citizens center. No definite date has been set, but Dumford said the hearing will be held within 30 to 60 days.

Slides of senior citizen centers in surrounding communities will be shown at that hearing. A draft of the senior citizen center building is also expected to be exhibited at that time.

BESIDES THE discussion of the proposed senior citizens center, other topics of interest to the elderly were discussed as part of a public hearing held by the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging.

Mrs. Ardath A. Lynch, administrator of the agency, discussed local programs for the elderly persons. She noted that $23,000 has been allocated for Fayette County for information and referral services, escort service, and other activities.

She said the planning for the use of the monies must be done on a grassroots level. "What Fayette County needs is not known in Columbus," she said.

Mrs. Lynch introduced the four local delegates to the agency's advisory council through which the program is operated.

The delegates are Virginia Essman, Margaret Hurtt, Pearl Stoughton, and George Lundberg. Alternates are Clarence Cooper, Vesper Flint, Edna Taylor, and the Rev. Ralph Wolford.

An increase in membership to the Fayette County Commission on Aging was noted at the meeting. The commission now has 324 members.

Persons over 60 years of age can join the commission for a $2 initiation fee. Associate members (persons under 60 years of age) may join for a $5 fee. The commission hopes to have 750 to 1,000 members by next year.

were passed concerning the items.

BIDS ACCEPTED

A bid of $8,160 for two hydraulic snow plows and two salt spreaders was accepted by Council after a lengthy discussion.

The accepted bid was the only bid received on the winter snow removal equipment. The bid was submitted by Bill Jaacks Equipment Co. of Washington C. H.

There was some question as to whether other firms had a fair chance to bid on the equipment. Council member James Ward felt at least one firm "did not receive an opportunity to bid."

Ward made a motion to reject the lone bid and readvertise. Only Council member John Morris voted no with Ward for the motion and it was defeated.

Council was informed that all legal requirements such as advertising for the bids were followed. A motion was made to accept the bid and it passed by a 4-2 vote.

OLD FASHIONED DAYS

Washington C. H. Area Chamber of Commerce executive vice president George Malek attended Wednesday's meeting to get final confirmation on plans for Old Fashioned Bargain Days which will be held in the downtown area from July 20-23.

ALLEY PROBLEM

A number of Fifth Street residents attended Wednesday's meeting to discuss an alley behind their residences.

Part of the alley is reportedly blocked off and one resident requested that the alley be opened. A garage presently sets in part of the alley that has not been open to traffic for several years.

The alley problem was turned over to Council's safety committee for further study.

COLUMBUS AVE. PLAN

A report from Council's safety committee outlining plans for the construction of a right turn lane on Columbus Avenue near the Kirk Auto Parts Store, Carroll Halliday, Inc., the J and J Restaurant, and the Dairy Queen.

The safety committee approved the plan for the right turn lane and now a curb cut request is needed by businesses along the street to complete the proposed project.

LIQUOR PERMIT REQUEST

Council received notice that the Car Shine Car Wash had requested the transfer of a liquor permit from the Sagar Dairy Depot for establishing a drive-through beer facility at 1225 E. Temple St.

Council had no objections to the plan and now a conditional use permit must be obtained by the owners of the new facility from the city board of zoning appeals.

$100 million

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Damage suits have now passed the $100 million mark in connection with the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire May 28 which claimed 162 lives.

A Hamilton, Ohio, man who survived the blaze filed a $26 million damage suit Wednesday on behalf of himself and his wife who died in the fire.

John C. Duncil Jr., 34, sought $3 million compensatory and $10 million punitive damages each for both himself and the estate of his wife, Gloria Sue, 36, in the action filed in U.S. District Court at Covington, Ky.

Duncil claimed he suffered permanent injuries from inhaling smoke and fire.

The negligence suit names as defendants, F.R. Corp., the owners and operators of the club, the Commonwealth of Kentucky and the City of Southgate, Ky.

Major bills advance

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Majority Democrats will have the state's 1977-1979 budget on the desk of GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes in ample time to avoid a money crisis at the start of the new fiscal biennium July 1, House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, says.

He gave the assurance Wednesday during a fast-moving legislative day that brought key actions on several other major bills.

Included was Senate approval of a House-passed proposal allowing mail-order purchase of auto license plates.

The House sent the Senate 5637 a bill requiring police radar cars to have bubble-type signal lights on their tops—and forbidding them to monitor traffic from hidden vantage points. Sponsors said the bill was needed to wipe out local "speed traps."

Also in the House, the Health and Retirement Committee voted 7-5 for a bill to legalize Laetrile for cancer treatment in Ohio. It now awaits floor action. Ohio would become the 11th state to so authorize the substance, Louisiana having become the 10th on Wednesday.

The House, as expected, rejected the Senate's version of the $13 billion, two-year appropriations bill. It set up a similar confrontation on a bill requiring candidates for governor and lieutenant to run as a team next year.

Both bills will go to conference committees.

On March 30, the Senate voted 28-5 to have the top office-seekers run independently in the June 1978 primary, then form a tandem ticket for the general election.

The House decided 77-18 Wednesday that the gubernatorial candidate should have the right to pick his running mate, and that the two should run as a team in the primary as well as the November election.

Ohio moves step closer to easier car licenses

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill is near approval that would stagger motor vehicle registration over a 12-month period and grant motorists the option of obtaining license plates and validation stickers by mail.

Rep. James L. Baumann, D-32 Columbus, said Wednesday after 31-2 Senate approval of the bill that he would ask the House to agree to Senate amendments and send the measure on to Gov. James A. Rhodes for signing.

The plan would be phased in when registration begins next year in March. Stickers would be good from that time until the motorist's assigned registration month in 1979—a period that could range from nine to 19 months.

Also beginning next year, the 50-cent fee for deputy registrars would be increased to $1, raising the total registration cost in some counties to $16.

Use of the mail option, which would be publicized by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, would cost an additional $1.50.

In addition to extending the registration period, the bill seeks to tighten safeguards against potential abuse in deputy registrar offices by streamlining procedures through a central computer system.

Sen. Thomas E. Carney, D-32 Girard, said the computer system, putting deputies on a direct line with the central BMV office here, "expedites the process and eliminates the waiting which is a major complaint of the present system."

It will permit printing and issuance of driver's licenses within seconds, Carney said.

"After initial one-time, set-up cost of $2.6 million," the Mahoning County lawmaker said, "the state can save approximately $1.4 million per year over a projected five-year period. This would be a $7 million reduction from the present costs of this system over this period."

Sen. Robert D. Freeman, D-29 Canton, who with Sen. Sam Speck, R-20 New Concord, voted against the bill, called it a "valiant attempt" to reform the system, but said it fell short.

Freeman said it would do little to eliminate "malfeasance and inefficiency" in the distribution of license plates and stickers.

The bill would authorize the state auditor to audit deputies' books every two years and they would be bonded at a minimum of $25,000. Appointment of deputies through political leaders would not be changed.

The number of deputy registrars would be reduced from the present 360 permanent and 290 temporary to 228 permanent, full-service registrars.

Bill penalties

Hawk has been attempting for months to get the rezoning completed and to begin construction. He attended Wednesday night's meeting and asked that the ordinance be passed immediately. He said a three-week delay (the date of the next Council meeting) will hamper construction plans.

Previously, Council had attempted to pass the rezoning ordinance with the suspension of rules. This would put the ordinance into effect immediately but at least six Council votes are needed.

A motion to suspend the rules was again made at Wednesday night's meeting. However, with Council member Richard Kimmet absent and Morris voting against the suspension of rules, the motion failed.

Morris said he had his reasons for not voting for the suspension of rules but he made no further comment.

In an attempt to allow Hawk, who spends much of the year as a missionary in Central America, to begin construction, the Friday meeting was scheduled. Then, the rezoning ordinance can be placed on third reading and passed.

Another item of legislation concerning land was placed on second reading Wednesday. It would annex 23 acres of land to the city. The land, owned by Frank and Janet Sollars, is the proposed site of a senior citizens village.

IN OTHER legislative activities Wednesday, Council passed one ordinance with the suspension of rules and another ordinance failed after undergoing three readings.

The ordinance which was enacted into law without undergoing the usual three readings was to appropriate additional funds from previously unappropriated city funds. It legally amended the appropriations ordinance passed last winter for the 1977 fiscal year.

The ordinance which was placed on three readings and then was unanimously voted down concerned a proposal changing the filing date for city income tax from April 30 to April 15.

Council appeared to be in favor of the ordinance which was placed on first reading two meetings ago. However, at the last Council meeting, several city residents voiced opposition to the date change, saying that it heaped all income tax payment on one date.

The Council members had a change of heart and stated they would vote against the ordinance after it was placed on third reading.

That occurred Wednesday night and the measure failed.

An ordinance containing part of the income tax ordinance that failed was introduced and placed on first reading. It states that income tax payments or refunds in amounts less than $1 would not be declared nor credited.

TAX TIP IF YOU SELL FOR A PROFIT

Normally, taxpayers who sell their home for a substantial profit face a heavy tax load, but this burden can be avoided. If you buy another home that costs as much or more than the sales price of the old one, within a specified time, the profit from the sale is not included in your taxable income.

Opinion And Comment

The decline in writing skill

No one who lacks skill in writing — in the ability to communicate ideas and information clearly through the written word — can be regarded as an educated person. It is reasonable to expect that the foundations of writing skill shall have been laid by the time a student completes high school. Measured by this standard, a very large number of high school graduates fall short.

By the same token so do the schools that graduated them. It is noteworthy that a mea culpa to this effect was uttered the other day by Wilson C. Riles, California's state superintendent of public instruction. Addressing a University of California Board of Regents committee meeting, Riles said: "I think it is untenable to have youngsters put in seat time for 12 years... then need special attention" when they get to college. "It is an indictment of us."

It is an indictment of many American educators. All across the country, there are reports of high school seniors unable to write effectively and needing special training in the basics of composition when they enter university. And as Riles said, "It is incumbent upon our elementary schools, junior high schools and high schools to get these students ready."

There is a start at undertaking corrective measures. One significant initiative is being taken by the University of California with the help of partial funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities. Centers aimed at training teachers to improve student writing skills are being established not only in California but also in Colorado, New Jersey, New York and Oregon. It is hoped that local funding can be secured to carry on the work in future years.

It is important work — fundamental work having to do with the very heart of the educational process. Writing skills have been on the decline among American students in recent years. This unfortunate trend must be reversed.

THESE DAYS...By John Chamberlain

A counterrevolution that succeeded

It's funny how the no-gun people, who want to get rid of the Second Amendment to the Constitution without ever bringing it to a legal repeal vote, tell their stories.

To listen to them, the National Rifle Association, which is as often as not portrayed as a vicious lobby, has recently been captured by wild-eyed revolutionists who are only interested in the wanton destruction of animal life and even of human beings. But the true inside story is much less melodramatic.

What happened at the recent Cincinnati meeting of the NRA is that its life members, who, under New York state not-for-profit incorporation law, have the right to run their organization, staged a counterrevolution against a group that was less interested in shooting as a sport than it was in emulating the Sierra Club and the Wild Life Association. The counterrevolutionists did not decry ecology; in fact, their argument for regulated hunting is that it helps preserve the balance of nature. But they insisted that a gun club should remain a gun club if it were to remain true to its legal mandate.

The story of how the ecologists almost took over the NRA goes back to 1968 when Teddy Kennedy and others took exception to the presence of military personnel at the shooting matches staged at Camp Perry in Ohio. Camp Perry is owned by the state, and the NRA was fearful that anti-gun politics might force a cancellation of the NRA lease. So the NRA brought a big property at Raton in New Mexico. The idea was to develop Raton as a shooting preserve.

Since heavy expenses would be involved in this, counsel was sought from Oram Associates about money-raising. The Oram advice gave the NRA ecological revolutionists, a minority, their clue. To get money from foundations, said the Oram report, the NRA would have to change its image. It would have to cease its lobbying in defense of the right to bear arms that is guaranteed by the Second Amendment and go in heavily for environmental issues in a manner not consonant with the NRA charter. The revolutionists committed the organization to the purchase of land in Colorado Springs in Anticipation of shifting the national headquarters from Washington, D.C., to a spot that would be closer to the big preserve in Raton.

A move to Colorado would have spelled doom for the NRA's Washington-based Institute for Legislative Action which has had phenomenal success in fending off legislation that would be subversive of the citizen's right to bear arms. Fresh from a dramatic victory in turning back an anti-gun law in Massachusetts, the NRA life members moved into action. At the Cincinnati meeting the move to Colorado was vetoed. Harlon Carter, a veteran supporter of the Institute for Legislative Action, replaced Maj. Gen. Maxwell Rich, a pro-Colorado enthusiast, as NRA head, and a few of the NRA Washington employees, who had been arbitrarily fired for opposing an ecological takeover, got their old jobs back.

Contrary to some reports, there was no great dissent at the NRA Cincinnati convention. The majority easily prevailed. The organization has plunged enthusiastically into the primary political campaigns in Virginia, New Jersey and Louisville. In New Jersey, the NRA Political Victory Fund helped state senator Ray Bateman win the Republican nomination for governor. Bateman is accorded a good chance of beating Gov. Brendan Byrne, the pro-income tax Democratic incumbent, in November.

The Louisville, Ky., NRA Political Victory Fund operation was indirectly aimed at U.S. Congressman Romano Mazzoli, who has sponsored anti-gun legislation as a member of the House Judiciary Committee. By helping to nominate friends of the Second Amendment for Democratic mayor and for head of the Louisville City Council, the NRA has challenged Rep. Mazzoli's city political machine. The idea is to upset Mazzoli in 1978. Without heavy support in the city of Louisville, Mazzoli would have a hard time winning in his Kentucky district.

Despite the clamor from anti-gun crusaders, people generally respond favorably to NRA contentions that the right to keep a protective firearm discourages more violence than guns in the hands of criminals engender. Britain has gun laws, but since their enactment in 1920, the rate of armed robberies in England involving firearms has increased 100 times.

The politico in America who would try to subvert the Second Amendment is faced with a tough proposition, and the NRA, now returning enthusiastically to its original mandate, means to keep it that way.

Tourists to get 'luxury arrests'

WINNIPEG, Canada (AP) — North-American tourists traveling along Highway 75 between the U.S. border and Winnipeg soon may be subject to "arrests" and sentenced to a night in a luxury hotel, dinner and a tour of the city.

Winnipeg and the Jaycees are co-operating in the plan to stop cars with U.S. licence plates, starting next month.

If the occupants of a car that is stopped plan to spend a few days in Winnipeg, they will be treated to some of the city's tourist attractions.

One carload of tourists will be so treated each week.

"THIS SUMMER I DRIVE AND YOU REARRANGE THE FURNITURE."

Custom convertibles provide good living

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Dick Baker uses a cutting torch to prolong America's love affair with the convertible automobile.

He was well into the business of making convertibles out of hard top cars when the major auto manufacturers had to quit making soft topped luxury cars last year because of a new federal law.

It takes Baker only about 20 minutes of surgery with a cutting torch to rip the lid off a $13,000 1977 Cadillac.

"In a week it'll be a convertible ready to deliver," said Baker, 43, working in his shop surrounded by an auto wrecking firm.

Baker said "GM was thinking of me" when it made frame and chassis components of the 1977 Cadillac Eldorado the same as those of the 1976 convertibles.

He uses convertible mechanisms from wrecked late model cars in his work. He maintains contact with about 200 auto junk yards around the country for convertible parts.

Baker has modified 16 of the 1977 cars into convertibles so far. His prices range from $6,500 for the expensive Cadillacs to about $3,500 for some smaller models.

He expects to modify about 20 cars this year and feels his price is cheap because of the appreciation potential of 1977 convertibles.

"A new factory built 1976 Caddy convertible might bring $20,000 but one of mine has already been sold for over $30,000," he said.

"Are they as good?" he asked, and answered, "Why they're a hell of a lot better. Mine don't rattle or squeak and the windows fit."

Baker said he didn't know whether the 1977 Cadillac could be converted when it first came out and figured there was only one way to learn.

"I went out and bought me a $13,000 1977 Eldorado when they first came out last September and cut the top off," he said. "I'm not sure what I would have done with it if it wasn't possible to make a convert."

The big car convertibles were phased out because of federal safety requirements for turnover protection. Baker is exempted because the law applies only to production runs of more than 500 cars.

"The reason people want convertibles is because you can't get them any more," Baker said of his work. "It's as simple as that."

"Half of the people who buy these cars will never even put the tops down."

Fred J. Gould, famous for his only poem, "Remember the Maine," commemorating the sinking of Dewey's flagship in Havana harbor, had his home in Burton, Geauga County. —AP

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

He's the only thing worth talking about

DEAR ABBY: My husband is the greatest! I know it for a fact, because he's been telling me that for 36 years.

My problem is that's ALL he ever tells me. Other than that, there is no conversation between us. He never asks me a question or initiates any conversation with me.

We have just one thing in common, now that the kids are married and gone from home. He still likes sex. Sometimes I get so starved for conversation I will get his attention by turning on the music and doing a little strip tease—tossing my undies at him, one piece at a time. But that just leads to the bedroom, and he doesn't talk much there.

Do other women have this problem? Or am I.

ALONE IN WASHINGTON?

DEAR ABBY: You're not alone, I'm sure. But why don't YOU initiate some conversation? Ask him what he thinks about the energy shortage or the chances for world peace, or how long he thinks Elizabeth Taylor will be happy down on the farm. The silence at your house is half your fault.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old whose sister is married and has an 8-month-old baby. She's living with her in-laws while her husband is in the service. They don't treat her very well, but she is totally dependent upon them. She was married after the baby was born and is very unhappy in her marriage, but she's trapped.

I recently ran into the fellow she was once in love with. He told me he was still in love with sis and he asked me to give her his phone number because he couldn't very well call her where she now lives.

My sister has often expressed her regret at having turned him down, and I'm sure she would like to see him again. I've always thought these two were meant for each other. He never married.

Should I give her his message?

TORN OUT EAST

DEAR TORN: When in doubt, apply the "do unto others" principle. Give your sister the message?

DEAR ABBY: One more letter, please, on TALKS TOO MUCH. Mrs. Anonymous asked for tolerance on the part of those who had to listen to non-stop talkers.

I agree with you. People who talk too much should become conscious of what they're saying.

I, too, was a long-winded bore until a dear friend did me a tremendous favor and asked me if I had ever LISTENED to myself.

I was more shocked than hurt by her frankness, but I began to listen to myself. That cured me.

I still bless my friend for probably the most helpful suggestion I've ever received.

TALKS LESS, LISTENS MORE

DEAR TALKS LESS: The trick is to get a non-stop talker to LISTEN when you tell him he talks too much.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WONDERING" IN MANKATO: Yes, it is possible that he has forgotten that you owe him the money, but I would attribute his "never mentioning it" to his good taste rather than his bad memory. Emerson said, "Pay every bill like God wrote the bill." And I say, "Wise man, that Emerson."

Central cities look to suburbs for money

By JONATHAN WOLAMN
AP Urban Affairs Writer
 Central cities are turning increasingly to special taxes and fees designed to recapture revenue from commuters who have moved out of town, but still use the city for work or entertainment.

Many cities, once wealthy, face a tough financial future which is not made any easier as middle-income families and businesses move to outlying suburban communities.

The flight from the cities began in the 1950s, but has become more acute in recent years as some cities began to suffer a decline in population for the first time.

However, some states do not allow cities to levy extra taxes on nonresidents, forcing communities to nicker-and-dime their way toward a balanced budget with special nonresident library and parking fees.

"People are leaving Little Rock and moving to the outskirts," says city Finance Director Jack Murphy. "Not only does Little Rock lose its tax base, but it's got to renew the core city in some way."

"We don't have a city sales tax or earning tax, so this creates a financial problem," he says.

Among those who can tax their suburban neighbors, the favored weapon is the wage tax. It is wielded by cities with problems as different as Birmingham, Ala., St. Louis and New York.

Most cities with wage taxes, for example Philadelphia, tax suburbanites working downtown at the same rate as city residents. The New York City commuter tax, however, is a flat one-quarter of 1 per cent of income while the city income tax on residents ranges from four times as much to 14 times as much.

Some cities — Nashville and Kansas City, for example — solve their problems by annexing outlying communities, or merging with them for tax purposes. Minneapolis and St. Paul share in a unique tax-base pool with their suburbs.

Buffalo, N.Y., benefits from a regional sales tax, returning revenues that the city has been losing gradually for years as shoppers headed for the suburbs.

Phoenix sells sewer and water services to residents of its suburbs at up to 40 per cent more than it charges city residents.

Boise, Idaho, charges extra fees for nonresidents who take books out of its public library. In Portland, Maine, suburbanites are charged an extra greens fee on public golf courses.

Milwaukee fiscal coordinator Bill Carey says: "We have to bear the municipal overburden of costs associated with poverty and the elderly. These extra expenses of police and fire protection, code enforcement, health care, rat control fall most heavily on those with the least ability to pay."

On the one hand, says Carey: "Milwaukee is limited by state law as to what it can tax. It cannot levy income or sales taxes on nonresidents." On the other hand, Wisconsin has a progressive tax equalization formula that aids the city.

Because influence in the state legislatures has been swinging from the cities to the suburbs, many other metropolitan areas are not so fortunate as Milwaukee in seeking help in the Statehouse. New York City has consistently been rebuffed in its efforts to raise commuter tax.

The Georgia Legislature has blocked any commuter tax proposals designed to raise more money for Atlanta, which figures that its tax base is not increasing fast enough to keep up with inflation.

Boston has been trying — so far without success — to get a payroll tax through the Massachusetts Legislature, and others have proposed a regional sales tax to help the city through its financial difficulties.

When St. Louis levied a 1 per cent tax on earnings, it added $44 million to city coffers in 1976. Officials say the funds are needed to reduce the disparity of wealth between the city and its suburbs.

"It's not just that the people have fled to the suburbs. The businesses have gone, too, leaving the city with tougher problems and a reduced tax base with which to face them," says city comptroller Raymond Percich.

Suburbanization problems are spreading to the wide open spaces of Idaho and Utah, according to officials there.

"Our property owners for the most part are required to foot the bill for city services for all the people, whether they live in the city or outside," said Salt Lake City finance chief Jennings Phillips.

"Police and fire protection, health, water, traffic control are all paid by property owners, not visitors," he says. "There was a time when the city was compensated, before the advent of suburban malls. We used to get sales tax. Now we get very little because the big retailers in Salt Lake have branches in the mall."

Phillips says Salt Lake City officials may ask the Utah Legislature to allow a commuter tax.

In Idaho, officials say suburbanization woes may spread with the eroding of downtown business districts that bolster city finances. In Pocatello, two large plants recently located outside the city to take advantage of lower property tax rates.

Two cities with a variety of ways of regaining suburban tax dollars are Birmingham and Kansas City.

Birmingham has suffered from white flight to 30 surrounding suburban communities since the 1960s.

Mayor David Vann says suburbanites make heavy use of such city facilities as the zoo, the airport and the civic center. As a result, the city levies a 1 per cent tax on wages earned in Birmingham by both residents and nonresidents, gains funds from a 1 per cent city sales tax, and charges $5 to $10 extra for library privileges.

Kansas City, Mo., aside from annexing liberally, used a 1 per cent tax on earnings to pry tax dollars from suburbanites who work in the city. It also has a tax on businesses located outside the city based on the volume of their business within the city.

Many urban experts believe the best way to solve city financial problems would be to merge the central cities with their suburbs, or to allow the cities to annex the outlying communities. Neither is likely to happen frequently in the current political climate, though an aide to the mayor Moon Landrieu says suburban resistance to a regional approach in the New Orleans area "is definitely breaking down."

In St. Louis, where the city population of 500,000 is one-tenth the county's, comptroller Percich says, "One solution that has been considered in the past is the merger of the city and the county."

"But the political climate is not right for that now. The people in the county can't see buying into the problems of the city. And, the flight of whites has left the blacks with considerable political clout in the city. I don't think they would go along with a move that would dilute it."

Buckeye Trail expansion noted

By JIM DAUBEL
For The Associated Press

Merrill Gilfillan, whose idea sparked creation of the Buckeye Trail, summed up its purpose in an article proposing the project back in 1959: "In these times reminiscent of the roaring 20s," he wrote, "youth should be encouraged to slow down and learn to know their native land. They need the invitation for a back-to-nature movement for an opportunity to form sound friendships."

The Buckeye Trail today consists of nearly 900 miles of well-marked hiking and horseback paths from Lake Erie to the Ohio River.

The trail extends from Headlands Beach State Park in Lake County in a south-southwesterly direction near or through Massillon, Cambridge, Chillicothe and Cincinnati.

A western spur runs from Cincinnati north to Delphos with plans to extend it to Toledo. A northern route has been established from Elmore in Ottawa County east to Wellington in Lorain County. This leg eventually will tie into the main trail in Lake County in Northeast Ohio.

The trail took a turn for the better two weekends ago when more than 100 volunteers rerouted some 155 miles farther south into Pike, Scioto, Adams, Brown and Clermont counties.

The undertaking, one observer noted, was one of the most ambitious one-day trail blazing projects in Ohio history.

The new trail, marked by volunteers with 2-by-6-inch blue paint blazes, extends south of Pike State Forest to Serpent Mound Memorial in Adams County and continues through portions of Brush Creek and Shawnee State Forests, East Fork State Park and on to Miamiville near Cincinnati.

Most of the statewide trail, and virtually all of it in the relocated section, follow seldom used county roads, lanes, logging roads and existing hiking paths on public land.

The Buckeye Trail is open to the public without charge.

The trail is planned, marked and maintained by the Buckeye Trail Association.

Blue paint blazes on trees, utility poles and fence posts within 10 feet on both sides of the trail mark the route. Changes of direction are clearly marked. Campsites are scattered along the trail but they are not yet plentiful enough to permit nightly camping on a long hike.

For campsite locations, sectional maps of the trail, guidebook, recommended routes for short hikes on foot or horseback and membership information, write Robert R. Paton, executive director, Buckeye Trail Association, Box 254, Worthington, Ohio 43083.

Dayton school levy could reappear

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The president of the Dayton Board of Education said on Wednesday he has not decided when he will next ask voters to approve a school operating levy.

Dayton voters defeated a 6 mill request June 7, and Supt. William Goodwin said calling a special election to pass the levy, which voters rejected by a more than 2-1 margin, would be a "waste of taxpayers money" as long as there is court-ordered busing in the city.

Meanwhile the defeat in Toledo of a 7.8 mill school levy Tuesday resembles 56 other votes around the state. There was levy balloting in 34 counties this month, adding to the collection of districts which face unplanned closings during the school year.

In fact, voters statewide have defeated almost half of all levy proposals on ballots since the general election last November. More than 160 requests have faced a vote, and 81 have been voted down.

The defeat in Toledo may close that district's public schools again next year. Last year schools closed Dec. 3 for 13 days after the defeat of two referenda during the year.

Likewise, school districts in Licking, Morrow, Wood and Meigs counties fear closings because of levies defeated this year.

Northmor Local voters in Morrow County defeated a 13 mill tax request, meaning funds are not available to complete the 1977 calendar year.

In Wood County an 8.08-mill Ostego district levy was rejected and officials there predict schools will close.

And the story is the same for Meigs County, where a 5 mill rejection will close school doors after Nov. 1.

Like tax levies in other state school districts, Toledo's recent proposal has suffered defeat more than once. If the proposal is placed on the ballot in September, it faces a fifth rejection by Toledo voters.

Howland Local School District voters in Trumbull County, which defeated the most school levies this year, twice defeated a 7.9 mill operating levy. The county as a whole has rejected five levies.

When taxpayers in Licking Valley voted down its school district's 10 mill tax June 7, after defeating in January a request for 7 mill levy, residents knew defeat meant school closings.

Set permanent Sinatra collection

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP) — Frank Sinatra's hometown is establishing a permanent Sinatra collection in the Hoboken Public Library.

Sinatra wasn't present for the announcement Wednesday, but his portrait and a few relatives were.

"I tell you, I knew Frankie was gonna get somewhere because he was always going into the bathroom to work on his vocal cords," said Sinatra's uncle Lawrence Garaventi. He was among those at the library when city officials unveiled a portrait of Sinatra and the singer's mother, Dolly, who died in an airplane crash in January.

Sinatra sent a telegram of regret saying he couldn't appear because he was filming a movie in New York.

In that way your carrier comes expected and you can be ready.

You can help, too, by having the money at hand so the carrier won't have to come back. Believe us, that will be appreciated.

Because this young person is in business and depends on full collection of the route for full profit. And repeat calls mean extra work and no extra profit.

Miss Jenkins and Mr. Butler are united in marriage

Miss Gail Jenkins and Bruce Butler, children of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Jenkins, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Butler, 711 S. Main St., Washington C.H. were joined in marriage recently. Dr. Haskell Moore performed the open-church double-ring ceremony in the Jeffersonville United Methodist Church.

The altar was graced with a pedestal of spring flowers of the colors of the rainbow, accented with palm leaves, baby's breath and other greenery. On each side of the altar were two beautiful nine-branch candelabra with a 15-branch brass candelabra in the center.

Mrs. Lee Marshall and Mrs. Katherine Baird presented a half-hour of music preceding the marriage ceremony. Miss Patricia Bick, the vocalist, sang "My Cup Runneth Over," "The Wedding Song," and "Evergreen" throughout the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of sheer polyester organza with French lace with full back with lace flower motifs, seed pearls and sequins, and long full sheer sleeves accented with lace motifs. The gown had an attached chapel-length train. The bridal veil was three-quarter length made of sheer polyester organza accented with lace motifs matching the dress and bordered with seed pearls. Her Juliet cap was trimmed with lace motifs and pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of stephanotis, pink and yellow sweetheart roses, yellow and white daisies, pink carnations, purple bachelor buttons, baby's breath and ivy. Two white roses from the bouquet were presented to the mothers.

Mrs. Patsy Steiner, matron of honor, wore a gown of lime green polyester knit with cowl neckline, cap sleeves and ties at the waist. She wore a matching wide-brimmed hat trimmed with colorful lace and ribbon with a lime silk daisy at the back, and carried a white woven basket of silk and spring flowers, baby's breath with ivy throughout.

The bridesmaids were Miss Sharon Jenkins, sister of the bride, Miss Betsy Hartman, Mrs. Reggie Smith and Miss Sandy Lewis, cousin of the bride. Each wore dresses identical to the matron of honor only in powder blue, pink, yellow and orchid. They, too, wore hats matching their dresses and carried baskets identical to the honor attendant.

Jon Butler served as best man for his brother. Seating the guests were Steve Butler and Dale Butler, brothers of the groom, Kevin Garringer and Randy Lewis, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Jenkins chose for her daughter's marriage a two-piece gown of azure blue with which she combined white accessories. Mrs. Butler wore a light blue and silver gown with navy accessories. Both mothers wore cor-sages of roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath.

Mrs. Julie Garringer presided at the guest book.

MERRY MARION MARVELS

The Merry Marion Marvels met recently at the New Holland Park Shelter House for a weiner roast and potluck supper to honor Mr. Ed Davis, the club's original advisor.

Doug Miller called the meeting to order and Mr. Davis gave the invocation. After a short recreation period following the supper, Doug Miller recalled the meeting to order.

Mr. Davis was presented a plaque from the two clubs in appreciation of his many devoted years as advisor. After a short thank-you address from Mr. Davis, Doug adjourned the evening's activities.

former White House special counsel Charles Colson.

"Living in constant noise and in overwhelming depression is like living in a terminal cancer ward," Colson told a group of high school students in this Boston suburb.

Colson spoke only hours after John Mitchell, 63, entered prison at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama on Wednesday, the first former U.S. attorney general to go to prison. Colson was also jailed there.

Mitchell became the 25th person jailed in connection with the Watergate scandal. He was imprisoned five years and five days after the break-in at the Democratic National Committee's headquarters at the Watergate building in Washington.

Former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman surrendered on Tuesday at the federal prison at Lompoc, Calif. Both men are serving 2½-to-8-year sentences, as is former domestic adviser John Ehrlichman, imprisoned since last October at Safford, Ariz.

"Everyone (in the prison) has family problems, and no hope for the future," Colson said, calling the dormitories "filthy beyond belief and smelling like urine."

"Taking men like Mitchell and Haldeman and thrusting them into a situation like that ... You can call it a country club if you like," he said to dispute such descriptions.

Colson, who served seven months of a sentence for obstructing justice in the scandal that toppled the administration of former President Richard M. Nixon, spoke to 21 Winchester High School juniors at the end of a four-week class on Watergate.

After throwing questions at Colson for three hours, the 21 students said they were unsatisfied.

Several described him as "very defensive."

The Colson interview was recorded on video tape by a Washington, D.C., firm that supplied materials for the class. It hopes to turn this and five other tapes into a television documentary and possibly a classroom film.

Kurfess Comments

By Charles F. Kurfess, Ohio House Minority Leader

Repugnance to taxation without representation is a strong American tradition, yet it seems we periodically find examples of it in our own system.

For instance, in Ohio municipalities may tax income earned within the municipality by non-residents. While this may be justifiable and has been authorized legally, double taxation of that same income is now facing more and more citizens as more cities of residence tax the same income as the city of employment.

In 1975 Ohioans paid more than one-half billion dollars in municipal income taxes to nearly 300 cities and villages. These funds are supporting substantial portions of city budgets for police and fire protection, trash removal, parks, recreation and other services.

Most of the major cities in the state have had a payroll tax for some time, and smaller suburban communities have followed suit. To avoid taxing twice the income of residents of one city working in another, many municipalities entered into agreements whereby the city of employment would share the tax with the city of residence, or would establish a system of credits so the same income would not be taxed fully by both municipalities.

This system worked well until recent years, when the larger cities, facing budget crises, decided in increasing numbers to stop practicing voluntary tax reciprocity with the suburbs. Thus the suburban communities, primarily residential, are faced with either suffering substantial revenue reductions or levying their full tax on that same income which their residents earn elsewhere. The result too often has been a decision that affected workers must pay the full tax, both where they work and where they live, on the same income.

A typical example is the small city of Vermilion along Lake Erie, which for years enjoyed municipal tax reciprocity with the bigger industrial city of Lorain. Each day, over half of Vermilion's wage earners make the short trip to jobs in Lorain. Because Lorain officials decided earlier this year to drop tax reciprocity to help alleviate their own financial situation, the city of Vermilion loses nearly $60,000 a year, or approximately 10 per cent of its operating budget.

The unpleasant alternatives facing Vermilion are to reduce municipal services or require many of its residents to pay the full Vermilion city income tax on top of the Lorain tax.

Obviously the Legislature should have stepped into this situation several years ago. There are solutions, such as requiring a system of reciprocity or tax credits between municipalities — or limiting the portion of a city income tax rate which can be levied on non-residents.

If the State Legislature would assume the responsibility of dealing with this growing problem, it might also afford the opportunity to provide a more practical means of collecting municipality payroll taxes. Currently, the cost of collection of municipal income taxes, as a portion of revenue collected is well over twice the cost of collecting the state income tax.

The longer the Legislature delays, the more difficult the problem becomes. We must consider the fiscal impact on major municipalities of any proposed solution, but the unfortunate and inequitable situation faced by citizens paying two municipal income taxes on the same income can no longer be ignored.

For several years now, the General Assembly has failed to even hold hearings on bills dealing with this dilemma. We should delay no longer.

Bank holdup at 3:25 a.m.?

BELLAIRE, Ohio (AP) — Somebody in Bellaire had a novel idea for robbing a bank without being caught.

About 3:25 a.m. Wednesday the Union Savings Bank alarm had brought police who could find nothing amiss. Nevertheless they called bank Vice President Robert Tush who opened the building and began checking for signs of a break-in.

He found none, but while looking the phone rang.

"Now listen. This is a robbery. I need money — $3,000 in small bills," the incredulous Tush said he heard the caller demand.

Police officer Greg Harris was with Tush in the bank and said it was almost as if someone was watching their movements. The caller hung up as Harris reached for an extension phone. Nothing was reported missing.

Cooper dies in prison

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Just three weeks after being denied early parole, a Cincinnati real estate broker who was serving time for a multimillion-dollar fleeing scheme died Wednesday in the Correctional Medical Center.

Corrections officials said 78-year-old Stanley Cooper died of heart failure and chronic intestinal problems at the center in the old Ohio Penitentiary here.

Cooper, reportedly weighing only 70 pounds, had sought early release because of health problems but the Ohio Parole Authority ruled denied the request on June 2.

Cooper was sentenced in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court in September 1976 to 11 consecutive one-year prison terms following conviction in April 1976 of selling unregistered securities. He began serving the sentence last November.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge Robert Kraft, who noted before sentencing Cooper that many elderly persons had lost life savings in the scheme, denied shock probation in December.

Bees included as livestock

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Hitch up Old Paint outside, partner, and check your sixshooters at the door! Things have changed out on the range.

The state assembly on Wednesday unanimously approved a measure aimed at redefining livestock to include bees.

Assemblyman Carmen Perino's resolution noted, among other things, that 21 fruit and nut crops, 10 forage crops and 20 vegetable crops depend on honey bees for pollination.

Perino, a Democrat, said beekeepers need help in the drought from programs aimed at helping livestock.

The measure, a resolution asking Congress to change its definition of livestock, was sent to the Senate on a 68-0 vote.

Ex-Firestone exec in slush fund fight

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Robert P. Beasley, former chief financial officer for Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., has asked a Summit County Common Pleas Court judge to dismiss Firestone's suit against him on the grounds that "the judicial system is not available to settle affairs between participants in an illegal scheme."

Firestone filed suit last February accusing Beasley of converting $625,394 in corporate funds to his own use, but Beasley, breaking a long silence, said Tuesday the company's top executives took their action to divert attention away from their own wrongdoing and made him the "fall guy."

The battle between Beasley and Firestone stems from a Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) investigation of illegal corporate political contributions and payoffs to foreign officials.

The SEC took Firestone to court in June 1976. A federal judge ordered the company to conduct an "in-house" investigation into the payoff scheme after the company reported it paid out $380,000 in illegal domestic political contributions from 1970 to 1973.

A special audit committee reported last December that 21 top Firestone officials engaged in the illegal scheme from 1960 to 1973 and that $1,161,495 had been amassed in off-book accounts to maintain the operation. They also reported to the SEC and the court that of the $1,161,495, it could not account for $625,394, and accused Beasley of withholding information in connection with the investigation.

The company sued Beasley in February, asking for an accounting and return of the missing funds.

Beasley said in a sworn statement before Judge Frank Bayer that throughout his participation in the slush fund program, he operated with "full knowledge, cooperation, acquiescence and participation of Firestone's top executives and directors."

Schools may levy income tax soon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The House Economic Affairs and Federal Relations Committee recommended passage 10-1 Wednesday night of a bill that would authorize school districts to impose income taxes.

The bill's chief sponsor is Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, whose home city rejected Tuesday by a 3-2 margin a proposed 7.8-mill property tax increase to help financially plagued schools.

Wilkowski's bill had been languishing in the legislature for months and at one point he had the proposal switched to the friendlier economic affairs panel from the House Ways and Means Committee, where it hit a dead end.

Tuesday's election results in Toledo, where a similar property tax boost was defeated last fall, brought on the prompt committee action Wednesday night.

Schools in Toledo had to shut down for most of last December due to rejection of the earlier levy.

It's problem is similar to those faced by numerous other school districts across Ohio where voters are refusing to vote for higher property taxes. Toledo's voters, however, haven't approved a levy for that purpose in the past 10 years.

Wilkowski, while acknowledging that it may be just as difficult to sell the idea of an income tax, said at least the bill gives school board members a new option.

Under his bill, a school board could levy either type of tax, alone or in combination, if voters give their approval.

Wilkowski's measure now goes to an uncertain fate in the House Rules Committee, which assigns bills to floor votes.

Some lawmakers, such as Ways and Means Chairman George D. Tablack, D-52 Campbell, claim Ohioans will not stand still for "a fourth income tax," on top of existing federal state, and city levies.

Would kill humans, leave buildings intact

Neutron bomb work studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The full Senate is facing a decision on whether a lethal neutron bomb that kills people but leaves buildings intact should become part of the U.S. nuclear weapons arsenal.

The Senate Appropriations Committee rejected on Wednesday a move by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., to ban production of the device.

Instead, it approved a $10.4 billion public works and energy research appropriation bill containing funds to develop the nuclear warhead, possibly as early as next year.

The legislation, already approved by the House, now goes to the full Senate.

Although its details are mostly secret, the proposed bomb is reportedly designed to kill people through the release of highly radioactive neutrons while doing a minimum amount of damage to structures.

It would be fitted to the tactical, short-range Lance missile. This missile, bearing conventional nuclear warheads, is deployed with NATO forces in Europe.

Advocates of the proposed new weapon claim neutron bombs would make a better battlefield deterrent than the estimated 7,000 nuclear warheads in Europe. These advocates say the warheads now deployed have too large a nuclear yield to be used as tactical weapons.

Some $1.09 billion of the $10.4 billion appropriation approved by the Senate committee is earmarked for nuclear weapons activities.

Hatfield's motion to drop funding for the neutron bomb was rejected by the committee on a 10-10 tie vote in a closed-door session. Committee members voted later to make public the vote and the nature of Hatfield's proposal.

Under existing law, even if Congress approves such devices as the neutron bomb, production cannot begin without an order from the president.

The committee also rejected President Carter's request to cancel the Clinch River breeder reactor project at Oak Ridge Tenn., voting instead to appropriate $150 million for the project for the next fiscal year so construction can begin.

The administration wants the project halted, claiming it would lead to the worldwide spread of bomb-suitable plutonium. Breeders produce more plutonium than they consume as they generate electric power.

Although the vote was another setback for Carter's hope to scuttle the project, White House officials were working with leaders of another Senate panel, the energy committee, in hopes of coming up with a compromise.

The funds voted by the Appropriations Committee will have no practical effect if Congress does not also pass companion legislation continuing authorization for the project. It is this bill that is now before the Senate Energy Committee.

The Appropriations Committee also ratified last week's vote of a subcommittee to eliminate eight of the 17 water projects approved by the House of Representatives over Carter's opposition.

Community Ed report

By TONY PACK
Program Director and
MARTIN JONES
Assistant Director

There is a lot of activity in the Community Education office this week. We have several projects forming and ideas for many others.

The summer recreation program is running smoothly. Cindy Jamison and Carol Frisby are supervising between 50 and 100 children daily.

Last week, the city manager, Mr. Shapter, and the city inspector, Mr. Tatman, stopped by to see how things were going. We at the Community Education office are proud that our city officials are interested enough to make sure the program is a good one. We thank them for their time and cooperation.

The Community Education tennis tournament, sponsored by the Buckeye Savings Association, will be held from July 11 until July 23. Registration will begin June 30.

Registration for the Community Education classes will begin next Thursday. The classes will start the week of July 11. Registration will be at an open house in the Community Education office. Details will be in next Thursday's article. Classes to be offered include macrame, Civil War history, speech, bookkeeping, quilting, manual communications, tennis, typing, cake decorating, knitting, crocheting, solar energy, an inventor's class, metric mathematics, French and Ohio history.

The summer basketball league started last Tuesday night. Ye old Community Education team suffered a loss, however, we will be back Thursday. That is if Marty and I can get the knicks out of our legs.

This past Monday was the first executive committee meeting of the new administration. If you aren't aware of who comprises our committee, they are as follows:

Advisors are Edwin Nestor and Guy Foster, superintendents of the Washington and Miami Trace school districts respectively. Also serving on the committee are Kathy Lee, chairman; John Gruber, Louie Kuhlwein, Robert Highfield, Bill Cupp and Wayne Arnold. These are the people who govern Community Education.

For further information concerning Community Education, please feel free to drop us a line, call or stop by at any time. Our address is Box 520, Washington C. H., and our phone number is 335-6621. We are looking forward to meeting you.

Civil service bill passes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Representatives have approved a Senate proposal under which present civil services employees would get a competitive edge in exams for promotions within the same governmental unit.

However, the 84-10 vote Wednesday sent the bill back to the upper chamber after the addition of an immediately effective emergency clause.

Sponsors said the emergency clause is justified to end frustrations among thousands of public workers who stand to benefit from the legislation. The Senate must add its approval to the emergency clause, to complete enactment.

Under the bill, a civil service employee who earned a passing mark on a test for promotion would receive the higher position, even though applicants from outside the affected agency received a higher mark.

Rep. Bob McEwen, R-77 Hillsboro, said the bill encourages employees to remain in public service and utilize their prior experience to help improve services.

Housing measure passes Senate

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill enabling counties and cities to grant tax exemptions as an incentive for rehabilitation or restoration of structurally sound housing has passed the Senate with flying colors.

Kroger store sets expansion project

Fahey said that variety will be greatly expanded with an estimated 28,000 items available. The present Kroger Co. store offers approximately 12,000 items.

"Emphasis will still be on food," Fahey pointed out, "and with the added space, we will be able to greatly increase the choice for the consumer. We also will continue to stress quality in all the products we sell because we believe this is an essential part of giving shoppers a value," he said.

Departments such as housewares, hardware and appliances also will be expanded. The most popular brands of cosmetics will be offered, and the selection of toys and games will be comparable to that offered by leading department stores, the company said. "Our aim in a Kroger Sav-On store is to offer high quality, broad variety to meet any family's needs, and the convenience of having everything under one roof and through one set of checkstands," Fahey explained. "We believe Washington C.H. area shoppers will be pleased with our new store," he added.

The position of unit manager, which Fahey holds, is a new one. Dave Amstutz will remain the Kroger Co. as food manager and Bob Westbrook as pharmacy manager. Hiring for the Kroger Sav-On store will not begin until closer to the opening date, but Fahey anticipates that several additional jobs will be available in the new store operation.

BLESSED EVENTS

To Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Eugene Sockman, Atlanta, a boy, 8 pounds 1 ounce, at 11:31 a.m. Wednesday in Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

The Kroger Co. announced today that its Washington C.H. store will be enlarged and remodeled into a new kind of retail store which combines food, drugs and general merchandise.

Construction has begun on the conversion project, which will enlarge the Clinton Avenue store to 42,254 square feet, and will expand the variety of products to be offered.

The remodeled store also will receive a new name — Kroger Sav-On. Completion date is set for late summer.

The adjoining Super-X drug store was closed last Saturday in preparation for the remodeling project, and the pharmacy department, which will continue to operate on regular hours, has been relocated to the foyer of the present Kroger Co. store. The super-market will continue to operate 24 hours per day during the renovation project, company officials said.

"This is an exciting new retailing concept," said unit manager Ken Fahey. "It offers the convenience of one-stop shopping, but goes one step further by placing drug store and supermarket items which are related next to each other. For example, all baby needs, including baby food, will be located in one section," he said.

Set court expansion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Small claims courts could handle cases demanding up to $500 under legislation on the way to the House with 32-1 Senate backing.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Sam Speck, R-20 New Concord, would lift the current $300 maximum on filing of claims in the court where plaintiffs can take a case without assistance of an attorney.

Speck's bill would also require small claims courts to have some weeknight or Saturday hours and permit branch offices in districts of more than 250,000 population.

A section that would have permitted claims courts to cite defendants who fail to pay judgments with civil contempt was softened after Sen. Michael Schwarzwald, D-16 Columbus, warned that it could lead to "debtors' prisons" in Ohio.

Schwarzwald's amendment requires courts to put defendants on 30-day notice before moving for a contempt citation.

Carlisle chief shot, wounded

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — A 27-year-old woman was being questioned by the Warren County sheriff's department today following the shooting of Carlisle, Ohio Police Chief Robert Reichard.

Reichard, 32, was reported in fair condition at Middletown Hospital with gunshot wounds he received Wednesday night in the shoulder and chest. Deputies said the shooting occurred in Reichard's apartment.

Reichard has been chief at Carlisle since 1973. He previously served seven years with the Greenville, Ohio police department.

The sheriff's office withheld details of the investigation. No charges were filed immediately.

Erosion said worst in past 2 decades

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly eight million acres of Great Plains farmland were damaged by erosion last winter and spring, the highest total in two decades, the Agriculture Department says.

Officials said Wednesday erosion hit 7,992,802 acres for the seven months ending May 31, 30 per cent above last year's figure, when 6,165,335 acres suffered damage.

February was the worst month, with an estimated 2.8 million acres suffering erosion damage. Officials said erosion harmed 2.4 million acres during March.

Total damage last season was the most since wind stripped 10.3 million acres in 1956-57.

Officials consider land damaged if enough soil is removed or deposited on it to cause further erosion hazard or impair its capacity to produce crops.

At the height of wind erosion, in 1954-55, some 15.8 million acres of Great Plains land were damaged, according to the department's soil conservation service.

Colorado was hardest hit this season, with nearly 2.2 million acres damaged, almost one-third of the total in the 10-state region. Last season, 739,750 acres were damaged in Colorado, the agency said.

Airlines account for about 95 per cent of all American travel abroad and about 80 per cent of public transportation passenger miles between communities in the United States.

"Causes of wind erosion were frequent, long wind storms; inadequate crop residue cover; excessive tillage and inadequate soil moisture," the final report said.

Other states and their land damaged by wind during the season included these in the northern plains:

Montana, 266,623 acres this season and 903,454 in 1975-76; Nebraska, 396,260 and 348,343; North Dakota, 791,805 and 296,700; South Dakota, 692,621 and 463,549; and Wyoming, 13,180 and 26,030.

In the southern plains damage included:

Kansas, 315,450 and 907,288; New Mexico, 597,550 and 288,275; Oklahoma, 206,840 and 619,867 and Texas, 2,192,173 and 1,572,079.

'Down by the Riverside'

Let's tour Ohio series

EDITOR'S NOTE: One of a series of short tours of Ohio travel attractions prepared by the Fayette County Automobile Club for the Record-Herald.

Marietta is situated at the nexus of the Ohio and Muskingum rivers and was the site chosen by General Rufus Putnam and his fellows as the likely place to establish the settlement called for by the Northwest Ordinance of 1787. This first permanent settlement of the newly-created Northwest Territory, not yet 200 years old, has since attracted many a wayfarer and offers an adventure tour of no less than 32 historical, cultural and fun attractions. Reaching back into the early settlement days, the original home of the Putnam family with many of its original furnishings is preserved within the walls of the Campus Martius Museum. The museum brings to life the fort and times of the early settlers.

Walking distance from Campus Martius is the Ohio River Museum, composed of three separate, elevated buildings, each dealing with a different facet of river life—Fish and wildlife natural history; the age of the steamboat with 19 elaborate models; and man's control of Ohio's waterways with dams, ferryboats and bridges.

Moored adjacent to the Ohio River Museum is the W.P. Snyder Jr., one of the last stern-wheelers to travel the Ohio River. Another stern-wheeler, an authentic replica, the Valley Gem, takes daily trips up the Muskingum River from the Washington Street Bridge through some of the most breathtaking river scenery in the country to Devol's Dam.

Some of the really fascinating historical sites in Marietta are the Ohio Company Land Office, the oldest existing building in the Northwest Territory, built in 1788; the First Congressional Church, which dates back to 1809, and the still magnificent, Lafayette Hotel, built in 1825. Then there is Mound Cemetery, which contains "Conus" an example of the prehistoric Moundbuilders art as well as 24 graves of Revolutionary War soldiers and officers.

No visit to Marietta would be complete without a jaunt across the bridge to Williamstown, West Virginia and a tour of the Fenton Glass Company and a visit to their gift shop. Then on the way back drive up to Lookout Point for a picnic and a fabulous view of the Muskingum River Valley and town.

Marietta is easily reached from Washington C.H. by taking U.S. 35 to Chillicothe; follow Route 50 southeast to Belpre and Route 7 northeast to Marietta.

Alex Haley tells of early struggle

NEW YORK (AP) — "Roots" author Alex Haley, telling of years of struggle as a writer, says he was down to his last can of sardines and 18 cents when he finally sold his book of the autobiography of Black Muslim leader Malcolm X.

"I was so happy, I put that can of sardines and the 18 cents in an ornate glass frame with a velvet background," he told a meeting of 400 magazine representatives on Wednesday.

"And last week, I had the thrill of hanging my Pulitzer Prize over my sardines," he said.

Haley won a Special Book Award this year from the Pulitzer committee for "Roots," his story of one man's ancestors taken from Africa and living in slavery in America.

He spoke at the first joint seminar of the Magazine Publishers Association, the Association of National Advertisers and the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — When a series is axed, it's customary for the star to shrug or gripe, then accept fate. Not Robert Conrad, whose "Baa Baa Black Sheep" war series was dropped by NBC this spring.

The feisty, rough-and-tumble actor, who plays Marine flying ace Pappy Boyington in the show, went to war to save it, waging his campaign in NBC's executive suites and elsewhere. And it seems he's won.

Universal Studios confirms it'll shoot five next-season episodes this summer. Conrad says five more scripts have been ordered, too.

NBC, still negotiating with Universal on "Sheep," won't say anything official now when the series will be back. But Conrad is betting it'll be back in midseason, possibly earlier.

His campaign to save the show began last March, when an NBC executive indicated in a trade paper interview the series might not be renewed for another season. At the time, it had modest Tuesday night ratings against ABC's hit "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley."

When Conrad saw the interview, he decided it was time to act. Whereupon he crashed a party NBC brass had put on for series producers.

"I'd had a little wine, so I was kind of vehement about my show," grinned the actor, known to sip other than water now and then. "And I said, 'Now, listen, you guys...' Which they did, raising his hopes.

But when NBC's new schedule came out, "Sheep" wasn't on it.

"When that happened, I said, 'Oh, my goodness,'" said the 42-year-old Chicagoan in a manner suggesting he used stronger words. "But I never accepted the cancellation."

Encouraged by support he says he found among NBC affiliates during their May convention here, Conrad commenced insisting to NBC President Bob Howard and key program executives that they'd made a mistake.

"It breaks down to the fact we didn't do well in New York, where 'Happy Days' is strong, but we did extremely well elsewhere in the United States, particularly in the South," he said.

He also feels the show would have done much better out of the so-called "family hour" which, because of its no-nos on violence, made his combat series seem to show that war is heck.

Still, Conrad — who says "Sheep" will return in a later time period — noted that one week in October, when baseball pre-empted ABC's two top sitcoms, his series came in 11th in the national ratings.

Last month, when it got two Thursday night tries, he added, it edged by CBS' "The Waltons" the first week — even after a month's absence — and increased the margin the next week.

He said he kept pointing this out to NBC, along with what he felt were other indicators of the show's potential, such as its heavy fan mail and big paperback sales of Pappy Boyington's autobiography.

Conrad, star of "Wild, Wild West" and "Hawaiian Eye" for four years per series, said he never gave up on "Sheep" because "I knew I had a hit. It was reflected in all the evidence available to me."

Sure, the option date for renewing the show had expired when he was battling to bring it back, he said, "but that's just paperwork. It's good for the economy, keeps a lot of lawyers busy."

His eyes twinkled. "You know what John Adams said in 1775: 'One useless man is called a disgrace. Two or more are called a law firm.'"

New jail funds coming from feds

JEFFERSON, Ohio (AP) — Federal officials finally are releasing funds for a new Ashtabula County Justice Center which will replace the decrepit County Jail here.

County commissioners said Wednesday the Economic Development Administration (EDA) has reinstated a $4.7 million grant for the new center and construction is to start in mid-July.

That word came as U. S. District Court Judge Thomas Lambros, acting on a petition filed by a jail inmate, issued a final order for phasing out the antique structure.

Lambros described the jail as a badly eroded, crumbling masonry structure with deplorable sanitary conditions and "practically no illumination or ventilation."

County commissioners say part of the jail dates to 1811, with one section built in 1843 and remodeled after a fire in 1876.

"Operable light fixtures are almost nonexistent in the cell and bullpen areas, and are scarce even in the corridors," the judge said on his order, adding that because of lack of ventilation and an inadequate heating system, temperatures can become oppressively hot in the summer and drop below freezing in the winter."

He praised the commissioners for their efforts to get a new facility built, but ordered improvements to be made while they wait for the justice center to be finished.

Lambros issued a preliminary order May 5 putting a ceiling on the number of prisoners to be housed at the jail and calling for immediate improvements. In the order filed Wednesday, the judge praised Sheriff William Johnston, who took office last Jan. 3, for his efforts to improve conditions.

He gave the commissioners 15 days to submit a comprehensive plan for interim measures and gave the plaintiff, former jail inmate Julius Szekely of Cleveland, another 15 days to review the plan.

State patrol involved in political battle

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — One of the new powers majority Democrats are giving to the Controlling Board, which they dominate 4-3, lets it get involved in investigative functions of the Highway Patrol.

They put language into a state budget bill under which the board would have to give its permission before the patrol could be used for any probe outside its normal highways bailiwick. The patrol would have to tell controllers what the investigation was going to concern, at the risk of leaks, some lawmakers say they fear.

Gov. James A. Rhodes, who has used the patrol for non-highway purposes on many occasions, is likely to veto the so-called budget language "intent" bill, but Democrats have the votes in both houses to override.

Democrats on the Controlling Board cite financial reasons for wanting to have some say about using the patrol for such things as workmen's compensation and mental hospital investigations.

However, there are some other reasons that indicate some are interested in putting restrictions on the agency's investigative techniques.

Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, finance chairman and a member of the Controlling Board, said he has "some affidavits" asserting plainclothes officers violated the rights of citizens in the Youngstown area during a probe there of the worker's compensation system.

Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, invited Meshel during Senate debate on the issue to produce any evidence he might have. Meshel did not do so. Van Meter said he doubted that the patrol acted improperly. "We haven't seen one shred of evidence," he complained.

Meshel and other Democrats said Rhodes ordered the mental hospital and worker's compensation probes without considering that someone would have to pay for patrol time devoted to the probes. By law, no state funds derived from gasoline and highway user taxes, from which troopers are paid, may be used for non-highway purposes.

Since the Controlling Board must come up with the extra funds, Meshel said the board should be able to say in advance whether an investigation is to be authorized. In recent months, he said, about $300,000 has had to be taken from the state's dwindling emergency funds.

"The problem is the manner in which the patrol has been used and the fiscal impact on the department involved in the investigation," the senator said, adding, in an obvious reference to the governor: "Use of the Highway Patrol as a kind of state police force by one individual is repugnant to many of us."

Some lawmakers earlier criticized Rhodes for having troopers guard his private home in suburban Upper Arlington—Rhodes nixed returning to the governor's mansion in 1975—but they stopped after plainclothes officers began beefing up security around legislative chambers.

Some lawmakers say they fear that the patrol, which over the years has been kept outside the political arena, could have its image further tarnished unless the current squabbling is brought to an end.

Businesses want Cuba to pay for properties

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Perhaps the biggest obstacle to renewed trade with Cuba are those Yankee dollars the Caribbean nation owes American companies for properties expropriated by Fidel Castro's government.

The U.S. Foreign Claims Settlement Commission has documented more than $1.6 billion in bills for seized properties, and some corporation executives aren't in the mood to write off their share of the amount.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber, for example, has informed shareholders that while "normalization of relations with Cuba is a desirable objective," it is essential "these claims be negotiated as part of any plan for restoring normal relations."

Charles Pilliod Jr., chairman, maintains the original claim of $5.1 million, for a 95,000-square-foot automotive tire plant, has now mounted to $13.7 million, the result of 6 per cent interest, compounded annually for 17 years.

If other companies press for interest also, the entire bill will be close to double the original $1.6 billion, even if simple rather than compound interest is assessed.

The trouble is that Cuba appears to be in no position to pay off such claims, and thus a stalemate demanding all the diplomatic and other skills of negotiators is likely to develop.

The only relief the American companies have obtained has been from the U.S. government in the form of tax deductions.

Goodyear, for example, told shareholders that it took an initial claim against taxes of slightly less than $2.7 million in 1960, after other adjustments, it said, its net loss amounted to $2,411,145.27.

Other companies lost considerably more. Boise Cascade, owner of the Cuban Electric Company, claimed a loss of $279.3 million, and almost the same amount in interest. International Telephone & Telegraph lost $130.7 million.

With both sides apparently anxious for a renewal of trade relations, these huge sums almost inevitably will be the subject of intense debate. Some analysts believe the interest charges might be dropped; some U.S. officials are said to be talking in terms of barter arrangements.

Gas shortage seen this winter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even with normal weather, next winter's natural gas shortage may be as bad as last winter's, or worse, the Federal Power Commission is warning.

How much gas is available depends on a variety of factors, including the weather, the availability of more natural gas under emergency sales regulations and the ability of customers to switch to other fuels, the FPC said Wednesday.

The amount of gas in storage when the cold weather begins also will help determine the winter's supply, a report by the agency said.

The American Gas Association reported last week that the nation's natural gas storage capacity has increased slightly and stored gas supplies should be normal or larger than normal by October, when the heating season begins.

But there is no room for overconfidence.

Last winter, during a record cold spell, interstate pipelines were able to deliver only 5.715 trillion cubic feet of the 7.24 trillion cubic feet needed to meet customers' "firm requirements."

That left deliveries 21 per cent short of demand, and thousands of factories, businesses and schools were forced to close temporarily as a result.

This winter, the FPC said, pipeline companies expect the "firm requirements" to be a little lower, 7.2 trillion cubic feet.

But deliverable supplies have dropped even more, to 5.54 trillion cubic feet, leaving an anticipated gap of 23 per cent.

Severe weather like last winter's would increase demand and worsen the shortage, but also would bring emergency regulations into play that might allow partial relief by shifting some gas supplies around. That would make available to the interstate pipelines some intrastate supplies normally outside their reach.

The new FPC report is predicting a continuation of the trend that has been evident since about 1971, when the nation's natural gas production and sales to interstate pipelines began a long, steady decline.

Since then, the gap between supply and demand has widened each winter.

In the winters of 1974-75 and 1975-76, mild weather eased demand and averted any serious shortages. Gas service was temporarily curtailed, but primarily to "interruptible" customers who expect to be cut off once in a while and can adjust to it.

Last winter's severe weather increased heating needs and brought on gas shortages that forced cut-offs of service to many "firm" customers who depend on natural gas all the time.

The prolonged cold made matters even worse by blocking roads and rivers with ice and snow, hampering the transportation of substitute fuels like oil and propane to the gas-short areas.

The FPC reported that some pipelines expect no curtailments of gas service this winter, while others anticipate large curtailments.

Pollution agreements reached

WARREN, Ohio (AP) — Two major steel producers are reported to have concluded agreements with federal, Ohio and Pennsylvania environmental agencies for multimillion dollar aid and water pollution control programs in the Mahoning Valley area.

The Warren Tribune Chronicle said in a copyrighted story this week permits for construction of pollution control facilities by Republic Steel Corp. and U.S. Steel Corp. are expected to be signed by the end of June.

The newspaper said U.S. Steel is expected to move ahead with construction by September, 1981 under permits issued for its Ohio Works and McDonald Mills. Construction is to be completed in 1983.

Negotiations on Republic Steel's proposed $70 million water and air pollution control program have been going on in Columbus and elsewhere for 15 months, and permits for Republic's Mahoning Valley facilities also are expected to be signed by the end of the month.

The pollution control program outlined in the permits is a compromise among the steel firms, the cities of Warren and Youngstown, the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources (DER) and the Ohio and U.S. Environmental Protection Agencies, the Tribune Chronicle reported.

Under the program, pollutants flowing from U.S. Steel's Ohio Works into the Mahoning River will contain 98 per cent less cyanide, 98 per cent fewer phenolics, about 80 per cent less ammonia and two-thirds less oil, grease and suspended solids, if permit conditions are met.

Ohio jobs data good

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Bureau of Employment Services reports 2.5 per cent more people were at work in Ohio last month than in May 1976.

Added to that good news, were figures showing that the May unemployment picture makes it three months in a row that fewer people were out of work than the month before.

The bureau said Wednesday that 5.9 per cent of the state labor force was unemployed in May, compared to 6.4 per cent nationally. The U.S. figure, however, is not adjusted for seasonal variations.

The report shows that 284,000 Ohioans were without jobs, but that some 4.5 million people were at work in the state, with a record 2.89 million of that group drawing pay at non-manufacturing jobs.

About 1.3 million Ohio residents were at work in the industrial sector, 3.3 per cent more than a year ago but one-tenth of a per cent below the 1969 level.

The gross average weekly salary for industrial workers rose for the fourth month in a row to a record high of $280.87, the bureau said.

In 1900 there were 11,000 one-room schoolhouses in Ohio, where the official population was 4,157,545.—AP

New grain dryer erected at Jeff

JEFFERSONVILLE — A new grain dryer, which will have the capability of drying 100,000 bushels of grain per day, has been installed at the Fayette Landmark, Inc. elevator operation in Jeffersonville.

The new fuel oil-operated dryer will provide the elevator operation with the capacity of drying twice its present amount, depending on the rated capacity (Moisture) of the grain.

The Jeffersonville elevator, located off Ohio 41-N, presently has the capacity of drying approximately 50,000 bushels of grain per day. Once the new dryer begins operations the facility will be able to dry 100,000 bushels of grain a day.

Robert Lawrence, general manager of Fayette Landmark, Inc., said the grain dryer was erected by engineering crews from Landmark, Inc. in Columbus.

Final preparations on the installation of the dryer are presently being completed by work crews and the dryer is scheduled to be in operation by September, Lawrence said.

The company's elevator in Jeffersonville has a capacity to store 1,100,000 bushels of grain. When the facility was constructed in 1965 it had a capacity to store 550,000 bushels. A 600,000-bushel addition was constructed in 1973.

The Washington C.H. elevator on S. Fayette Street has a storage capacity of 350,000 bushels.

The installation of the new grain dryer at the Jeffersonville elevator is part of a $300,000 company expansion project.

Also included is the expansion of railroad service to accommodate the loading of 65 to 100 train cars with grain.

The increased loading capacity will enable Fayette County area farmers to ship grain from the county directly to overseas export houses in Baltimore, Md., and Norfolk, Va. Company officials said the increased capability will afford local farmers the opportunity to command 5 to 10 cents more per bushel for their grain.

A total of 2,800 feet of new railroad track will be installed on company-owned property at a cost of $30 per foot.

The C.R. Bolton Construction Co., of Columbus, is installing the new track. The project is two-thirds complete, according to Lawrence.

Fayette Landmark, Inc. is presently able to load only 10 railroad cars at its Jeffersonville facility and five at its

Man given another life term

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Neal Bradley Long was given his third life sentence Wednesday as he pleaded guilty to three more murders.

Montgomery County Prosecutor Lee C. Falke said he agreed to drop death penalty specifications from the charges because he is convinced Long will spend the rest of his life in prison.

Common Pleas Court Judge Stanley S. Phillips accepted the pleas and immediately handed down one life sentence, with similar terms expected on the other two murder charges.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert J. DeMascio already had sentenced Long to two life terms for the shooting murder of desegregation planner Charles Glatt. That murder occurred in September 1975.

Wednesday's pleas were for the murders of Edward Tillman, Larry L. Romine and Robert E. Hoard. Tillman was killed in 1973. Romine and Hoard were shot to death in 1975. All three victims were black.

In addition to pleading to the three murder charges, Long also said he was guilty of five other shootings between 1972 and 1975.

"You realize that that there is virtually no possibility you will ever see freedom again," Phillips said in accepting the pleas.

"Yes, I do," Long responded.

A slow moving warm front which extends from Kentucky into the Dakotas is moving toward Ohio and may bring some rain to the state Friday.

The National Weather Service says showers and thundershowers will develop ahead of the front and spread northeast over most of the state tonight and Friday.

High pressure covering the northeastern United States today will retreat off the east coast by Friday. The warm front will push northeast from eastern Kentucky through western Ohio and eastern Michigan by Friday night.

There was a chance of a few thundershowers in southern Ohio counties today, but most of the state enjoyed sunny skies and dry conditions.

Temperatures were in the 50s early today over Ohio.

Saccharin delay still in works

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite renewed government claims that saccharin causes cancer, Congress appears intent on a lengthy delay before action is taken to ban the artificial sweetener.

The House of Representatives already has voted against spending federal funds for the next 15 months for a ban on the sweetener, linked in tests to cancer in men as well as laboratory animals.

A Senate committee rejected the same proposal on Wednesday, but only after one senator reported pledges that separate legislation to stall a ban for 18 months is being readied for Senate and House votes.

Meanwhile, Donald Kennedy, FDA commissioner, said on Wednesday he believes saccharin "causes cancer in people and I think it ought to be out of the food supply."

In a speech in Portland, Ore., Kennedy said a new Canadian test, still unpublished, shows a clear link between saccharin use and the risk of bladder cancer in men.

He said opposition to a saccharin ban will diminish both in Congress and among the public once the validity of laboratory tests is realized.

Despite Kennedy's prediction, the American Medical Association voted during the day to support continued sales of saccharin as long as it carries a label warning that it may cause cancer.

Cross country back after eight years

After an absence of eight years, cross country will return to Fayette County in the 1977-78 school year.

Washington C. H. had the last cross country team in 1969 but discontinued the sport due to lack of interest and lack of a coach.

Now, Miami Trace will incorporate a cross country team next fall as part of a growing and immensely successful sports program.

The season will begin the first week of September, although no coach has been formally chosen. Harold Cook and John Halliday, both teachers in the county school system, have expressed interest in the venture.

Miami Trace track coach Bill Beatty was instrumental in the cross country team becoming a reality at the school, but will not be a coach because of a prior commitment as an assistant football coach.

Panther girls track coach Suelen Radabaugh will also probably turn down any offer to coach the cross country team because of year-round training for the girls sports program.

Nevertheless, the Panther cross country team will be co-educational. When contacted late last school year, Beatty related that at least nine boys and two girls were interested in the team, more than enough for the required seven for an actual meet.

The emergence of the Trace team also means the South Central Ohio League can now crown an official cross country champion. According to league rules, more than half of the SCOL teams must compete in a sport to be recognized by the league.

Miami Trace's cross country team will mean five of the eight SCOL schools will field cross country teams this fall.

Only Washington C.H., Hillsboro, and Madison Plains will be without the sport.

According to Beatty, one of the proponents for the program, the cross country team will benefit the entire Trace sports program. "As it is now," said Beatty, "we are leaving out the kid who doesn't play football in the fall."

"Sure, we offer wrestling or basketball in the winter and then track or baseball in the spring. But, if a kid doesn't want to play football, he is offered nothing."

"With the cross country team, kids like Scott Halterman (a 5-foot-2, 92-pound sophomore distance trackster) something other than football in the fall."

Beatty felt that cross country would not only benefit tracksters preparing for the spring track season, but also baseball and basketball players as a type of conditioning preparing for their respective seasons.

The Panther cross country team will use all facilities used by the Panther track team with the exception of the Miami Trace track.

According to Beatty, a suitable place to hold meets is the only obstacle at this time. "Cross country meets are usually run on golf courses these days and we are trying to look into one for our team. We have looked at Buckeye Hills but nothing is definite. As it is right now, we will have no home meets."

With the addition of cross country to the Miami Trace sports program, the Fayette County school now offers one of the more extensive programs in the area.

Cross country raises Miami Trace's interscholastic sport total to 10 sports for both boys and girls with tentative plans for tennis in the future.

Seattle Slew to be in Swaps

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Seattle Slew will return to the race track in the $300,000 Swaps Stakes on July 3 and the unbeaten Triple Crown winner doesn't figure to have much problem adding about $200,000 to his bankroll.

Hollywood Park officials said over the weekend that the Swaps Stakes purse would be increased from $200,000 to $300,000 if Seattle Slew entered. Coowner Mickey Taylor made the expected announcement in New York Wednesday.

The Swaps Stakes, a 1 1/4-mile event on dirt for 3-year-olds, is expected to draw from seven to 12 entries, according to a Hollywood Park spokesman who said the winner will receive around $200,000.

Among the horses expected to run, the spokesman said, are J.O. Tobin, Text, Nordic Prince and Bad 'N' Big.

J.O. Tobin, the English 2-year-old champion last year, finished fifth to Seattle Slew in the Preakness on May 17. Text won the Argonaut Handicap at Hollywood Park earlier this month.

Bowa greets Hoerner with grand slam

Reds score nine runs versus Phils and still end up losing by six, 15-9

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Who says Larry Bowa can't hit? Certainly not the Cincinnati Reds.

The 31-year-old Bowa was always noted as a fine-fielding shortstop and a light hitter. But Wednesday night he smacked the first grand slam homer of his career, went 4-for-4, with four runs scored as the Phillies outslugged the Reds, 15-9.

"Besides getting to the big leagues, it was my greatest thrill," said Bowa. "It was the first homer I've hit that I knew was out. I can't explain the feeling in my body as I went around the bases."

Bowa's blast came off Joe Hoerner in the seventh inning of the slugfest.

"I threw up my hands as I went around the bases," said Bowa, who has hit four home runs this season after socking just four in his first eight seasons as a Philly.

"It was the first grand slam hit off me in my 21-year career," said Hoerner, the 40-year-old Cincinnati reliever. "He hit the heck out of it. It was just a bad pitch. I'm not making any excuses, but my hand hit my knee as I threw."

Elsewhere in the National League, Atlanta defeated New York 4-1, Los Angeles belted St. Louis 12-1, Pittsburgh swept past San Diego 3-1, Houston shut out Montreal 7-0 and Chicago stopped San Francisco 4-2.

Braves 4, Mets 1

Phil Niekro struggled past the Mets, surrendering 11 hits and four walks but stranding 12 New York baserunners.

"I've had easier games," said the right-handed knuckleballer, now 5-9. "I was in trouble quite a bit but when I had to make a pitch, I did."

Dodgers 12, Cardinals 1

Steve Garvey's 16th homer of the season, a fourth-inning grand slam, was the key hit for Los Angeles. The Dodgers moved 8 1/2 games ahead of Cincinnati in the NL West thanks to Garvey's five RBI and Ron Cey's two-run triple and four RBI.

Burt Hooton, 5-3, scattered four hits before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Pirates 3, Padres 1

Jerry Reuss and Rich Gossage combined on a seven-hitter as the Pirates took their third straight game from the Padres after bringing a seven-game losing string to San Diego. Gossage struck out all four men he faced in picking up his 12th save.

Willie Stargell had a pair of doubles to lead the Pittsburgh attack.

Stanky new Texas pilot

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — New Texas Manager Eddie Stanky, spruced and polished by nine years of coaching college baseball, likes what he sees of his new team.

"The boys sure looked good," said Stanky, obviously delighted by the Rangers' come-from-behind 10-8 victory in Minnesota Wednesday night. "Yup, they sure looked good coming from behind," reiterated Stanky, as he unbuttoned his light-blue Ranger traveling uniform with the No. 42. "I'm glad I came back up."

Stanky said he sat up with his wife Dickie until 3 a.m. Monday, mulling over the chance to return to the majors. "She said, 'whatever you want to do is okay,'" said Stanky. "Once you get a taste of it, you've always got a hankering to get back."

Stanky, nicknamed "The Brat," by a New York sports writer in 1945 for his blood-and-guts playing style, was offered the job Sunday night by Rangers' owner Brad Corbett.

The 59-year-old Stanky signed a contract that carries through the 1978 season although he can quit at any time if he prefers.

His nine years at the University of South Alabama left an indelible mark on Stanky, who continually brought up the college life during visits with reporters before and after Wednesday night's game.

"I forgot for a moment that I'm in the pros now and not still in college," said Stanky. "I expected my old buddy Gene Mauch to come over and shake my hand just like we do in college."

Having been fired from previous managerial jobs with the Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Cardinals, Stanky said he has no illusions about his new position.

Bannister, the first pick in the June 1976 free agent draft, hurled a four-hit shutout, striking out eight Expos and walking three.

Bannister, 3-6, was helped by Jim Fuller's first two homers of the season, both of which were two-run shots.

Arnie still sparking army

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Sports Writer

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — At age 47 and wearing the scars of 24 U.S. Opens, Arnold Palmer can still send electrical sparks flying in a golf gallery.

"Excuse me, excuse me," a silver-haired, grandmotherly woman said, shoving her way to the edge of the 18th green. "I want to see Arnold Palmer."

The broad-shouldered man they once called "The Charger" was hunched, characteristically knock-kneed, over a 15-foot putt. He gave the ball a gentle nudge. It rolled resolutely toward the cup, spun around the high side, appeared to drop and then hung precariously on the lip.

What started out as a wild, ecstatic cheer turned into a thunderous moan.

"They thought I had dropped it—so did I," Palmer said afterward, talking about his even par 70—the near 69—which put him up among the leaders in the opening round of the 77th Championship.

"It's amazing," an older man in the gallery commented. "There is something about a Palmer cheer that distinguishes it from all other cheers. It's just as if the crowd is holding its breath while Arnie is putting, then lets it all out when the ball goes home."

Asked about it afterward, Palmer, his thinning hair bleached by hours under the sun, his strong face still boyishly impish, remarked:

"The complete silence—I've noticed it just before I shoot. It weighs on me. I can feel them pulling for me to make it. It charges me up. I like it."

Palmer remains a phenomenon in the mad world of sports. His is a rare, intangible and inexplicable quality reserved for precious few. The modern word for it is "charisma." In the Roaring Twenties—in Clara Bow's day they called it "It."

You either have "It," or you don't. Greatness isn't the gauge.

Palmer has it, Jack Nicklaus doesn't. Muhammad Ali has it, but not George Foreman. Joe Namath has it. Fran Tarkenton and Roger Staubach don't. It radiated around Joe DiMaggio but not Ted Williams, a superior hitter. Robert Redford has it, but not Rock Hudson.

Jack Dempsey had it, Gene Tunney didn't. Judy Garland had it, a thousand better singers and actresses could

Cubs 4, Giants 2

Larry Bittner and Jerry Morales each hit solo homers to back the combined four-hitter of Bill Bonham and Bruce Sutter as the Cubs won for the 12th time in 16 outings. Sutter registered his 18th save despite Bittner homered in the first, Bonham singled in a run in the second, Morales homered in the fourth and Bobby Murcer drove in the final Chicago run with a single in the eighth.

Palmer, Orioles latest victims

Red Sox power meter still surging

By BOB GREENE
 AP Sports Writer

Baltimore's Jim Palmer tired around the seventh inning, and Boston's wrecking crew of power hitters capitalized on the pitcher's fatigue.

"If you make good pitches, you'll get them out," Palmer said. "But if you throw it over the plate, the way they're going, they're going to hit it."

Hitting home runs at an astonishing pace, the Red Sox have slammed 29 in their last eight games for a major league record.

"There are a bunch of strong dudes in the lineup," said Boston's Carlton Fisk, who slammed two homers, including one in the ninth inning, to give the Red Sox a 7-4 victory over the Orioles.

In other AL games Wednesday, Cleveland topped Toronto 7-5 in 12 innings, New York outlasted Detroit 12-11, Chicago defeated California 6-2, Milwaukee downed Oakland 5-1, Kansas City edged Seattle 4-3 and Texas outslugged Minnesota 10-8.

"Jimmy (Palmer) always tells me when he's getting tired," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "He indicated he was getting a little tired in the seventh."

Until then, the Red Sox had only one home run—George Scott's AL-leading 20th of the season in the second inning.

With the Red Sox trailing 4-1 entering the seventh, Jim Rice and Fisk hit solo blasts. Fisk craved a two-run shot in the ninth, giving the Red Sox the lead, and Butch Hobson followed with his 10th home run of the season, also a two-run homer.

Yankees 12, Tigers 11
 Reggie Jackson's two-run double climaxed a five-run eighth inning as New York snapped its five-game losing streak by beating Detroit. The Tigers scored five runs in the sixth inning to tie the score at 7-7, then took a brief lead with three runs in the seventh.

Detroit's sixth-inning rally included a two-run homer by Steve Kemp, an RBI double by John Wockenfuss and a pinchhit two-run homer by Phil Mankowski.

But in the Yankee eighth, Paul Blair and Bucky Dent singled before Graig Nettles pounded his 14th homer of the season.

Indians 7, Jays 5, 12 innings
 A sacrifice fly by Jim Norris scored Frank Duffy in the 12th inning to snap a tie as Cleveland defeated Toronto for its seventh straight victory. Rico Carty followed with a single and two walks forced in the final run.

The Blue Jays had forced the game into extra innings on Al Woods' RBI single with two out in the ninth. Reliever Jim Kern, 3-3, worked 3 2-3 innings to earn the victory.

White Sox 6, Angels 2
 Jorge Orta drilled a two-run homer and Wayne Nordhagen drove in two runs with a single and double to lead Chicago past California.

Bart Johnson, 4-3, scattered five hits in 6 2-3 innings of relief to pick up the victory.

Rangers 10, Twins 8
 Claudell Washington's three-run homer capped a five-run eighth inning as Texas rallied to down Minnesota in Eddie Stanky's debut as Rangers manager.

Stanky replaced Frank Lucchesi earlier in the day after spending the last nine years as a college baseball coach.

Brewers 5, A's 1
 Jim Wohlford and Don Money knocked in two runs apiece as Milwaukee posted a two-game winning streak for the first time since May 28. Jerry Augustine, 8-8, scattered eight hits for the Brewers. Vida Blue, 4-9, took the loss.

Royals 4, Mariners 3
 George Brett pounded out his third hit of the night, stole second and scored on Al Cowens' eighth-inning single to lift Kansas City over Seattle.

Fred Patek cracked his 1,000th major league hit, a single in the second, then stole second and scored on Tom Poquette's double. Hal McRae doubled in the third and made it 3-0 on a single by John Mayberry.

Royals' starter Paul Splittorff left the game after being struck in the right leg by a ball off the bat of Craig Reynolds in the sixth. Reliever Doug Bird, 3-1, got the victory.

Seaver yet to join local promotions

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench does bank commercials. Pete Rose does everything else. A local pro softball team heads a major automaker's huckstering. But newcomer Tom Seaver, so far, hasn't entered the local promotion market.

"I can't see any local advertiser making a grab for him until he's proven himself in a Red Sox uniform," said Matt Merola, Seaver's New York-based business agent.

"Call it Cincinnati conservatism, but I don't think they'd want him until he's become more a part of the club," Merola said in a telephone interview.

Merola said there have been two inquiries, however, from Cincinnati businesses since the trade last week with the New York Mets.

Merola said he's not worried about the situation.

"Our philosophy has always been that baseball comes first with Tom. Whatever comes off his performance on the field...well, we'll look at that."

"His thoughts now are making the adjustment to the Reds. We haven't even discussed what kinds of things he might look for in Cincinnati."

Seaver's value to national advertisers is bound to climb due to widespread publicity over the trade.

"The press he has received since the trade has been overwhelmingly favorable," Merola said.

Seaver is in his sixth year of modeling in national advertisements for a men's clothing. He also promotes an all purpose athletic show, and has done national spots for razors, cologne and petroleum products.

"He's been on national TV every year since 1969," Merola said, and feels Seaver could well join Bench, Rose and Joe Morgan in the local ad market.

"Johnny comes across as the more controlled sophisticated type while Pete is more of the hell-bent-for-leather kind. Tom seems more refined, cultured. I think there is a niche in Cincinnati for him," Merola said, noting Seaver has no local advertising links in the New York market.

Yankees learning, the hard way

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Every B-grade high school chemistry student knows that if you put two highly volatile elements together you can blow up the lab. It's a lesson the New York Yankees are learning in the broader and costlier confines of baseball.

The explosive ingredients are George Steinbrenner, rich, proud and impatient, and his team manager, combative Billy Martin, survivor of a hundred informal brawls on and off the field.

Steinbrenner is a captivating man with tremendous vigor. If he has a fault, it is a boyish worship of Yankee tradition.

He regards the team as his personal toy, so he has no compunction about getting involved in all the working parts — from front office to the manager's quarters to the playing field.

It was his decision — not that of President Gabe Paul as reported — that saved Martin's scalp as manager. He also dressed down the entire team in a stormy locker room scene that sent the team back on the field like punished dogs, their tails between their legs.

Martin is a skinny firebrand who would take on a regiment of Marines bare-handed if one of them stepped on his toe. He acts first, thinks later. Conceded one of the finest managerial brains in all baseball, he blew jobs at Minnesota, Detroit and Texas because he carried on a running war with his employers as well as his colleagues.

They've called him the "Mission Impossible" manager. He takes run-down ball clubs, builds them into winners and then self-destructs. His defiance of his boss' wishes has brought Steinbrenner's tolerance to the breaking point.

The Yankees won the AL pennant in 1976 because they had an ideal chemistry, a team made up largely of no outstanding players but men of better than average ability who played as a unit. There wasn't a fat head in the

'The Queen of tennis tournaments'

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Normally you don't look upon a big sports event as having a feminine or masculine gender. You don't think of it as a "he" or a "she."

If you did, football's Super Bowl and baseball's World Series — with all that sweat, muscle and rough stuff — certainly would have to be "he's."

They do refer to golf courses sometimes as if they wore petticoats instead of garlands of Bermuda grass and necklaces of sand. Who can forget how the late Bob Jones used to call Augusta National, site of the Masters, "a fickle lady who will jump up and snap at you if you don't treat her with respect?"

If ever there was a sports event that had to be personalized it is the Wimbledon, or All-England Tennis Championships.

Make no mistake about it — she is all woman.

They call her "The Dowager Queen of Tennis Tournaments." Others write of her as "The Little Old Lady of Worple Road" because that's where she lives.

She is 100 years old this year and no one can say she has not been kind to the ladies. Whereas she has paid proper deference to the men down through the generations — from William Renshaw to big Bill Tilden to Jimmy Connors — she seems to have glorified her nieces.

They were accorded equal status long before the women's lib movement took root in America. Their names are woven through the championship lists like some rich fabric — their deeds, it seems, far more memorable than those of their male counterparts.

Little Lottie Dod winning the ladies' title in 1887 at age 15... France's graceful Suzanne Lenglen, shocking galleries with her sleeveless shirt and calf-length pleated skirt, winning six crowns, five in a row starting in 1919... Helen Wills, a white eyeshade failing to hide her chiseled poker face, winning a record eight titles... little Mo Connolly, a siege gun from the back court... Althea Gibson, the Harlem black girl who got to curtsy before the queen... Maria Bueno's rapierlike shotmaking... and the indomitable Billie Jean King.

The tradition was upheld Wednesday when hundreds in a record crowd of 37,355 deserted the stadium and stands to strain for a look on outside courts at Billie Jean, on stitched-up legs at age 33 making a comeback bid for No. 7, and a slip of a girl named Tracy Austin, just 14 and little bigger than the racket she swings so menacingly, turning her Wimbledon debut into a winning one.

For all 100 years, Wimbledon remains a haughty, stubborn but beautiful aristocrat, refusing to bow to the increasing pressures of modern change.

They still play the game on grass, as they did a century ago, and use the terms "love" and "deuce," coined by monks in the 13th century.

lineup.

But Steinbrenner was an impatient man. His pride pricked by the loss of four straight games to Cincinnati in the World Series, he went out and signed Reggie Jackson and Don Gullett to $2.9 million and $2 million contracts.

You couldn't blame him too much. "I owe it to the fans to get the best," he said. He had no idea at the time that the move might break up the team's delicate balance.

A brilliant player, well-educated and self-assured, Jackson — intentionally or unintentionally — acted the prima donna. He feuded with Thurman Munson, the team's Most Valuable Player. He showed signs of haughtiness. He became stamped as the "boss" (Steinbrenner's) pet.

When things don't go to his liking on the team, he calls Steinbrenner. Martin and some players thought Steinbrenner was taking the side of Jackson — as in the case last weekend when Jackson was yanked by Martin for allegedly loafing on a play.

Steinbrenner criticized Martin for making what he thought was a vulgar scene before a national television audience. There was no indication that he had also slapped the wrist of Jackson. Later he said he did.

It's an explosive situation with Steinbrenner still holding the match.

As for Martin, he's just Billy Martin. Has temper. Will travel.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
 AP Newsfeatures

Q. — Many years ago, on a farm where I lived as a boy, a lot of the wood used outdoors was treated with creosote. Is this still a good wood preservative?

A. — Yes. It is still used for rustic fencing, on farms and by railroads, but has a limited use around homes because of an objectionable odor and the fact that it cannot be painted successfully.

Q. — I know that kiln-dried lumber has been placed in ovens to remove the moisture, but why is this necessary?

A. — It removes only excessive moisture, not all of it. Perhaps the best way to describe the process is to say that it is much like the pre-shrink method used for fabrics. As the lumber dries, the cells in the wood contract and the fibers shrink and harden. The lumber becomes stronger, lighter in weight, more stable in its size, has better nail holding power and has greater resistance to the reabsorption of moisture.

Q. — I saw an advertisement for veneer core plywood. How does this differ from regular plywood?

A. — It doesn't. There seems no reason for a retailer to use that term, since veneer core plywood is the type you get when you ask for plywood at a lumber yard. It's the standard plywood, with layers of wood veneer glued together. It might be understandable if lumber core plywood were advertised as such rather than simply as plywood, because it contains a thick core sandwiched between veneers. This type of plywood is used for special purposes, one of which is when butt hinges are to be employed.

Q. — I want to remove a mortise lock from a door and install a cylindrical lock.

What's the best way to fill the holes that will be left on the face of the door from the old lock?

A. — No need to fill the holes. Use a decorative plate. The new lock will come with one of them. Make sure it is large enough for the purpose.

Q. — I am having insulation blown into the walls of our house. The installer says the interior walls should be painted with a vapor-resistant paint, preferably two coats. How do I tell whether a paint is vapor-resistant?

A. — Ask the dealer about the "perm" rating (vapor permeability rating) of the paint. A rating of 1 perm or less for primer and finish coat combined is considered good. Paints vary widely in the rate at which they allow water vapor to pass through.

(The selection and installation of insulation are explained in Andy Lang's booklet, "Saving Money by Insulating," available by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y., 11743.)

ARGENTINE DAM PROMOTES PROGRESS
BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The new Ullum Dam in western Argentina, scheduled for completion in mid-1979, will open up the desert zone of San Juan Province in the Andes foothills to colonization and additional agricultural farmland.

More than 60 per cent of the work on Ullum Dam has been completed, and now work is starting on the 1,075-acre park zone around the dam site.

In addition to adding to the panorama from high above on Mount Ullum, the dam will be used to irrigate the arid region, enabling people to settle on farms. This government plan is designed to aid in depopulating urban centers such as Greater Buenos Aires, and to boost the country's agriculture.

Several other mishaps checked

Two drivers injured in crash on Ohio 41

Fayette County sheriff's deputies investigated one traffic accident involving injuries Wednesday.

Both drivers claimed injuries in a collision at the intersection of Ohio 41-N and Peddicord Avenue about 2:05 p.m. Wednesday. Angela M. Cline, 23, Jeffersonville, struck a car, driven by Fred E. Jones, 25, 1101 Columbus Ave., which had pulled into her path onto Ohio 41-N from Peddicord Avenue, according to deputies.

Ms. Cline was treated at the Fayette County Memorial Hospital emergency room for scalp contusions and released. Jones was not treated.

Jones' car was struck broadside as he attempted to make a left turn in front of the other vehicle. He was cited for failure to yield by sheriff's deputies.

Four semi-tractor trailer rigs were involved in an accident about 4:50 p.m. at Garner's Truck Service, 1-71 and U.S. 35-NW, near Jeffersonville.

All four vehicles had been parked and the drivers were inside the restaurant when the brake system on one rig lost air. It rolled backwards 93 feet, according to Fayette County sheriff's deputies, jack-knifed and struck the other rigs. No one was injured.

Washington C. H. police officers investigated three traffic incidents in which three drivers were cited for failure to yield the right of way Wednesday.

Walter E. Wingeier, 70, of 94 Jamison Road, attempted to make a left turn from Court Street onto North Street and was struck by a westbound automobile. The other driver, Jeffrey A. Houseman, 19, Rt. 5, Washington C. H., was not injured. Wingeier was cited.

Ruth E. (Smith) Queen, 21, Apt. 10-B Wagner Court, was cited after she pulled out of Ev's Food market parking lot onto Columbus Avenue in front of a pick-up truck driven by Calvin W. Williamson, 43, of 4753 U.S. 62-S.

Damage to both vehicles was over $150, but no one was injured.

Wanda M. Long, 36, of 431 E. Paint St., pulled her car into the intersection of E. Court and N. North Streets for a left turn and was struck by another car when the signal light changed.

The driver of the other car was Willard L. Sims, 27, of 604 1/2 Columbus Ave. No one was injured. Ms. Long was cited by police officers.

Miss Merritt to reign

MT student named as new pork queen

Linda Merritt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman W. Merritt, 5145 U.S. 62-S, was selected as the 1977 Fayette County Pork Queen Wednesday night.

The selection was made during a meeting of the Fayette County Pork Producers Association in the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

Marilyn Seifried, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Seifried, Flakes Ford Road, crowned Miss Merritt as the new queen.

The runnerup in this year's pork queen contest was Brenda Joseph, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Joseph, 1105 Dayton Ave.

The 17-year-old Miss Merritt, who will be a senior at Miami Trace High School this fall, will reign over junior fair swine activities at the 1977 Fayette County Fair, July 24-30. She will also represent the Fayette County Pork Producers Association in the district contest and in a variety of other pork promotion activities, according to John P. Gruber, Fayette County agricultural extension agent.

The new pork queen has been active in 4-H club work for seven years and Future Homemakers of America activities for two years. Her school activities include cheerleading, track, student council, Y-Teens and symphonic chorus.

The judges for the queen contest were Mrs. Art Schaefer, president of the Fayette Porkettes; Dave Evans, District 7 director of the Ohio Pork Council, and James Barker, manager of the Producers Livestock Association. Jerry Hoppes was chairman of the queen contest committee.

Local firm named

Injunction sought to stop violations

CHICAGO, Ill. — The U.S. Department of Labor's regional solicitor has requested the Federal District Court in Ohio to issue a permanent injunction to stop alleged violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act, the federal wage-hour law.

In its complaint, the U.S. Labor Department named Flo-Lizer, Inc., engaged in fertilizer manufacture and sales at eight Ohio locations.

Flo-Lizer, Inc., has operations in Washington C.H., South Solon, Williamsport, Bainbridge, Ashville, Centerburg, Kingston and Hebron.

The complaint alleged violations of the overtime pay, minimum wage and record-keeping provisions of the act. The district court was asked to award back pay, as found to be due, for distribution among the employees involved. No amounts were specified in the complaint.

Legal action followed an investigation of the business by the U.S. Labor Department's wage-hour area office, 200 N. High St., Columbus, under the supervision of Richard J. Malloy, area director.

The Fair Labor Standards Act requires the payment of minimum wage rates; time and one-half pay for overtime hours unless a specific exemption applies; equal pay for equal work for both sexes; the keeping of adequate records of employee wages and hours; and restricts the employment of child labor.

Man's lawn to stay green

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — When city officials here imposed higher water rates to cut down water usage during the dry summer months, Jim Sloggett found a way to keep his lawn green. He moved it to a different town.

When the council last month boosted the water rates, Sloggett figured out his bill for keeping the grass green would go from $15 to $43.

So he got a sod cutter, removed his lawn and transplanted it to land he rented in the nearby towns of Clifton and Orchard, where cheaper water rates will keep his bill at about $15.

Arrests

WEDNESDAY — Walter E. Wingeier, 70, of 94 Jamison Road, failure to yield. Ruth E. (Smith) Queen, 21, Apt. 10-B Wagner Court, failure to yield. Wanda M. Long, 36, of 431 E. Paint St., failure to yield. Tamalyn L. Walters, 19, Greenfield, speeding.

SHERIFF WEDNESDAY — Fred E. Jones, 25, of 1101 Columbus Ave., failure to yield. Geneva C. Burns, 34, Hillsboro, petty theft. Eleanor L. Cumberland, 34, Hillsboro, petty theft.

Kids fight porno films

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The Cinema X Theater in Dayton has drawn complaints from Ronnie Manuel and Billy Phillips. They have collected 200 signatures on petitions asking for a more wholesome fare on the screen in their East Dayton neighborhood.

"Oh, it's just terrible the things they have in that place, just terrible," Manuel said. "They have just got all kinds of nasty, way nasty things in that Cinema X," agreed Phillips.

They have organized a protest march in front of the theater for Saturday afternoon.

Buddy Dave Pigman, a member of an elected neighborhood council, says the drive has been well-planned, especially considering the organizers are only 13 and 11, respectively.

What, you ask, do two kids care about a porno movie house?

"We just don't have anything to do out here," said Billy. "Now the only movie we can go to is two or three miles away..."

Elisha Whittlesey, who arrived in the Western Reserve in 1807 as a poor man and became a leading lawyer and Whig statesman, shaping much of northern Ohio's early history, lived in a Greek Revival house still standing in the village of Canfield, Mahoning County. — AP

Petty theft charges lodged against two Hillsboro women

Fayette County sheriff's deputies have arrested two Hillsboro women on charges of petty theft in connection with an incident at Seaway, Inc., 1270 Clinton Ave., Wednesday afternoon.

Geneva C. Burns, 34, and Eleanor L. Cumberland, 34, both of Hillsboro, were arrested about 4:50 p.m. Wednesday after they were detained by Seaway security personnel outside the store. The two women were allegedly found with approximately $34 worth of clothing and dry goods in their purses.

The women are presently incarcerated in the Fayette County jail. Bond has been set at $1,000 each.

A 10-year-old Washington C.H. boy has been charged with breaking and entering in connection with the burglary of the Carnegie Public Library reported last Monday, according to Larry E. Walker, a Washington C.H. police specialist.

Walker stated some of the money allegedly taken in the break-in was recovered. The boy has been released in his parents custody pending his appearance in Fayette County Juvenile Court, Walker said.

Washington C.H. police officers also investigated an assault incident early Thursday morning at the Sounds Unlimited night club, 131 S. Fayette St. A Columbus man, Jeffrey R. Howard, 18, told police officers he was at the club and became involved in an altercation with an unknown person. The unknown man mashed Howard's hand against a wall breaking the glass he was holding.

Howard was treated at Fayette County Memorial Hospital for lacerations of the left hand. Donna Ruffner, an employee of the hospital, summoned police while Howard was being treated. He refused to file to file charges.

Byron Ellars, Washington C.H. parking meter control officer, reported that sometime between 5 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. Wednesday, an unknown person or persons removed a parking meter and the post from the 100 block of S. Main Street. The meter and post were valued at $100.

Sell belongings of slain recluse

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — What looked like an ordinary drawer had all the makings of a fantasy for Eunice Gibson of Brownsburg, Ind.

The elderly woman spent $35 Wednesday at the auction of the estate of slain grocery heiress Marjorie Jackson for an item that was reported to have once contained a portion of the reclusive widow's millions.

"It was just an impulse, I suppose," she said. "I can look at that now and then and fantasize that all that money was in them."

Mrs. Gibson was one of thousands who flocked to Earl Cornwell's auction house Wednesday for the sale of Mrs. Jackson's belongings. By daybreak, the bargain-hunters and treasure-seekers had begun to arrive in everything from pickup trucks to Mercedes-Benzes.
